Yearbook of International Organizations 2014-2015, Volumes 1a & 1b (Set) Union of International Associations, 2014-06-16 Volume 1 A and B covers international organizations throughout the world comprising their aims activities and events Multidisciplinary Perspectives on Zimbabwe's Liberation Struggle Munyaradzi Nyakudya, Wesley Mwatwara, Joseph Mujere, 2022-11-15 This book provides a timely reconceptualization of Zimbabwe's anti colonial liberation struggle resisting simple binaries in favour of more nuanced critical analysis Most historiographies characterize Zimbabwe's liberation struggle as being defined by simple bifurcations along racial ethnic class and ideological perspectives This book argues that the nationalist struggle is far more complex than such simple configurations would suggest and that many actors have been overlooked in the analysis The book broadens our understanding by analysing the roles of a wide range of political figures organizations and members of the military as well as the media and the often overlooked part that women played Over the course of the book the contributors also reflect on the ways in which revolutionary figures have been repainted as sellouts in particular by the ZANU PF ruling party and what that means for the country's interpretation of their recent past Highlighting in particular the expertise of leading scholars from within Zimbabwe across a range of disciplines this book will be of interest to researchers of African history politics and postcolonial studies Race for Education Mark Hunter, 2019-01-24 An examination of families and schools in South Africa revealing how the marketisation of schooling works to uphold the privilege of whiteness Approaches to Understanding the Cumulative Effects of Stressors on Marine Mammals National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Ocean Studies Board, Committee on the Assessment of the Cumulative Effects of Anthropogenic Stressors on Marine Mammals, 2017-05-04 Marine mammals face a large array of stressors including loss of habitat chemical and noise pollution and bycatch in fishing which alone kills hundreds of thousands of marine mammals per year globally To discern the factors contributing to population trends scientists must consider the full complement of threats faced by marine mammals Once populations or ecosystems are found to be at risk of adverse impacts it is critical to decide which combination of stressors to reduce to bring the population or ecosystem into a more favorable state Assessing all stressors facing a marine mammal population also provides the environmental context for evaluating whether an additional activity could threaten it Approaches to Understanding the Cumulative Effects of Stressors on Marine Mammals builds upon previous reports to assess current methodologies used for evaluating cumulative effects and identify new approaches that could improve these assessments This review focuses on ways to quantify exposure related changes in the behavior health or body condition of individual marine mammals and makes recommendations for future research initiatives Using Graywater and Stormwater to Enhance Local Water Supplies National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Committee on the Beneficial Use of Graywater and Stormwater: An Assessment of Risks, Costs, and Benefits, 2016-07-30 Chronic and episodic water shortages are becoming common in many regions of the United States and population growth in water scarce regions further compounds the challenges Increasingly alternative water sources such as graywater untreated wastewater that does not include water from the toilet but generally includes water from bathroom sinks showers bathtubs clothes washers and laundry sinks and stormwater water from rainfall or snow that can be measured downstream in a pipe culvert or stream shortly after the precipitation event are being viewed as resources to supplement scarce water supplies rather than as waste to be discharged as rapidly as possible Graywater and stormwater can serve a range of non potable uses including irrigation toilet flushing washing and cooling although treatment may be needed Stormwater may also be used to recharge groundwater which may ultimately be tapped for potable use In addition to providing additional sources of local water supply harvesting stormwater has many potential benefits including energy savings pollution prevention and reducing the impacts of urban development on urban streams Similarly the reuse of graywater can enhance water supply reliability and extend the capacity of existing wastewater systems in growing cities Despite the benefits of using local alternative water sources to address water demands many questions remain that have limited the broader application of graywater and stormwater capture and use In particular limited information is available on the costs benefits and risks of these projects and beyond the simplest applications many state and local public health agencies have not developed regulatory frameworks for full use of these local water resources To address these issues Using Graywater and Stormwater to Enhance Local Water Supplies analyzes the risks costs and benefits on various uses of graywater and stormwater This report examines technical economic regulatory and social issues associated with graywater and stormwater capture for a range of uses including non potable urban uses irrigation and groundwater recharge Using Graywater and Stormwater to Enhance Local Water Supplies considers the quality and suitability of water for reuse treatment and storage technologies and human health and environmental risks of water reuse The findings and recommendations of this report will be valuable for water managers citizens of states under a current drought and local and state health and environmental agencies

Conflicts and Sustainable Tourism in Southern Africa Regis Musavengane,Llewellyn Leonard,2022-05-11 This book examines the nexus between conservation land conflicts and sustainable tourism approaches in Southern Africa with a focus on equity access restitution and redistribution While Southern Africa is home to important biodiversity pristine woodlands and grasslands and is a habitat for important wildlife species it is also a land of contestations over its natural resources with a complex historical legacy and a wide variety of competing and conflicting issues surrounding race cultural and traditional practices and neoliberalism Drawing on insights from conservation environmental and tourism experts this volume presents the nexus between land conflicts and conservation in the region The chapters reveal the hegemony of humans on land and associated resources including wildlife and minerals By using social science approaches the book unites environmental scientific social and political issues as it is imperative we understand the holistic nature of land conflicts in nature based tourism Discussing the management theories and approaches to community based tourism in communities where there are or were land conflicts is critical to understanding the current state and future of tourism in African rural spaces This volume determines the extent to which land reform impacts community based tourism in Africa to develop resilient destination strategies and shares solutions to existing land conflicts to promote conservation and nature based tourism The book will be of great interest to students academics development experts and policymakers in the field of conservation tourism geography sociology development studies land use and environmental management and African studies Identifying and Comparing

Important Areas for Marine Sustainable Use and Conservation Sofie Van Parijs,Joseph Appiott,Leslie New,Piers Dunstan ,Giuseppe Notarbartolo di Sciara,2024-05-24 The ocean is under increasing threat from the expansion of human activities The combined impacts of these threats as well as the potential impacts of climate change and ocean acidification have placed thousands of species at risk of extinction and have impaired the structure function productivity and resilience of marine ecosystems Currently some parts of the world s oceans are significantly impacted yet are without any form of effective management Only a small proportion of the oceans are within protected area systems Globally measures are being taken to increase protection and sustainable management but application is uncoordinated and not always effective In order to support effective policy action by countries and competent international and regional organizations it is critical to build a sound understanding of the most ecologically and biologically important ocean areas that support healthy marine ecosystems so that the necessary steps to ensure the long term function and resilience of these systems can be taken A Far-Away War Ian Liebenberg, 2016-01-31 South Africa's armed forces invaded Angola in 1975 setting off a war that had consequences for the whole region that are still felt today A Far Away War contributes to a wider understanding of this war in Angola and Namibia The book does not only look at the war from an e olde South African Defence Force perspective but also gives a voice to participants e on the other sidee emphasising the role of the Cubans and Russians This focus is supplemented by the inclusion of many never before published photographs from Cuban and Russian archives and a comprehensive bibliography
