Dewsbury, Susannah McGowan, Sheila S. Jaswal, Desiree Forsythe, 2024-09-24 Research demonstrates that STEM disciplines perpetuate a history of exclusion particularly for students with marginalized identities This poses problems particularly when science permeates every aspect of contemporary American life Institutions repeated failures to disrupt systemic oppression in STEM has led to a mostly white cisgender and male scientific workforce replete with implicit and or explicit biases Education holds one pathway to disrupt systemic linkages of STEM oppression from society to the classroom Maintaining views on science as inherently objective isolates it from the world in which it is performed STEM education must move beyond the transactional approaches to transformative environments manifesting respect for students social and educational capital We must create a STEM environment in which students with marginalized identities feel respected listened to and valued We must assist students in understanding how their positionality privilege and power both historically and currently impacts their meaning making and understanding of STEM Policing and Human Rights Julia Hornberger, 2011-10-21

Policing and Human Rights analyses the implementation of human rights standards tracing them from the nodal points of their production in Geneva through the board rooms of national police management and training facilities to the streets of downtown Johannesburg This book deals with how the unprecedented influence of human rights combined with the inability by police officers to live up to international standards has created a range of policing and human rights vernaculars hybrid discourses that have appropriated transmogrified and undercut human rights Understood as an attempt by police officers as much as by the police as a whole to recover a position from which to act and to judge these vernaculars reveal the compromised ways in which human rights are and are not implemented Tracing how in South Africa human rights have given rise to new forms of popular justice informal private policing and provisional security arrangements Policing and Human Rights delivers an important analysis of how the dissemination and implementation of human rights intersects with the post colonial and post transformation circumstances that characterise many countries in the South Neoliberalism and Class

Conflict in Latin America H. Veltmeyer, J. Petras, S. Vieux, 2016-07-27 The 1980s in Latin America saw the implementation of a sweeping programme of economic reforms either imposed as a condition for securing new loans or to embrace the neoliberal doctrine of structural adjustment the ideology of a newly formed transnational capitalist class However the structural adjustment programme also generated widespread resistance especially from within the popular sector of civil society This book analyses both the politics of the adjustment process and the political dynamics of this resistance in Latin America Resources in Education, 1994 Work, Social Status, and Gender in Post-Slavery Mauritania Katherine A.

Wiley, 2018-09-10 Although slavery was legally abolished in 1981 in Mauritania its legacy lives on in the political economic and social discrimination against ex slaves and their descendants Katherine Ann Wiley examines the shifting roles of Muslim men and ex slaves and their descendants women who provide financial support for their families Wiley uses economic activity as a lens to examine what makes suitable work for women their trade practices and how they understand and assert their social positions social worth and personal value in their everyday lives She finds that while genealogy and social hierarchy contributed to status in the past women today believe that attributes such as wealth respect and distance from slavery help to establish social capital Wiley shows how the legacy of slavery continues to constrain some women even while many of them draw on neoliberal values to connect through kinship friendship and professional associations This powerful ethnography challenges stereotypical views of Muslim women and demonstrates how they work together to navigate social inequality and bring about social change
