relations in the Katimok forest Baringo highlands Kenya and asks us to rethink the forest beyond questions of access and control of natural resources as a habitat where forest politics and human lives are inextricably intertwined Tracing the development of the Katimok forest from colonial times to the present day the author shows how as with many forests in Africa it has become constructed as a category and territory of nature under state control an area both to be protected and turned into exploitable resources For those living within and on the boundaries of the forest this social ecological transformation has had a significant impact Despite now being settled outside Katimok itself dispossessed by administrators heedless of local management practices many former residents continue to maintain a close connection with the forest not only to sustain their livelihoods but also to maintain their intimate links with ancestral lands where their stories and memories are materially inscribed and powerfully invoked Intimate connections to the forest are revealed to be as political as the use of its resources culminating in local claims for redress of historical dispossessions sustain their livelihoods but also to maintain their intimate links with ancestral lands where their stories and memories are materially inscribed and powerfully invoked Intimate connections to the forest are revealed to be as political as the use of its resources culminating in local claims for redress of historical dispossessions sustain their livelihoods but also to maintain their intimate links with ancestral lands where their stories and memories are materially inscribed and powerfully invoked Intimate connections to the forest are revealed to be as political as the use of its resources culminating in local claims for redress of historical dispossessions sustain their livelihoods but also to maintain their intimate links with ancestral lands where their stories and memories are materially inscribed and powerfully invoked Intimate connections to the forest are revealed to be as political as the use of its resources culminating in local claims for redress of historical dispossessions
