And World Report Business School Rankings:

Ranking Business Schools Linda Wedlin, 2006-01-01 In her admirable book Wedlin entangles what business school rankings really are and why they have become so important. The book contains plenty to interest the growing army of business school employees whose duties at least in part are concerned with boosting their institution's position in the rankings. Education and Training In times when the management education field is increasingly impacted by a proliferation of ranking exercises this book is a timely and welcome contribution. Linda Wedlin unpacks for us the real meaning of the contemporary explosion of rankings. Rather than simple classification schemes and mechanisms rankings are she suggests arenas where the field of business education is being created and re-created. They are the loci of boundary work whereby a field is progressively evolving and constituting itself. This is a convincing study relying on rich empirical data and carefully anchored in relevant theoretical debates. A must read for all those academics, students, policy makers and education professionals who want to understand the complex contemporary logics of higher education in management but also probably well beyond. Marie Laure Djelic ESSEC Business School Paris France League tables appear everywhere and have become important aspects of business school environments. Based on in-depth and creatively combined empirical studies Linda Wedlin provides us with explanations and insights on the emergence and impact of such rankings. This book should be of great value for all those who seek to play the ranking game. It gives a fresh perspective on how classification mechanisms drive the emergence, boundary setting and change of organizational fields. Kerstin Sahlin Andersson Uppsala University Sweden A fascinating study of the complex issues surrounding MBA rankings. Business schools really hate them but at times have to pretend to love them. Magazines and newspapers are really interested in their sales potential but have to make pretensions about their veracity. Linda Wedlin focuses on an area rich in hypocrisy and hype but also one where there are real consequences. Ranking furthered re-inforces the homogenising tendencies of MBAs. Anthony Hopwood Saïd Business School University of Oxford UK This is a most fascinating topic dealt with in a manner which is both serious and entertaining. Everyone in a business school would want to read it. Linda Wedlin's excellent research is presented with a no-nonsense approach: if there is anything worth counting she counts it and then interprets it. No fuss. Exemplary. Barbara Czarniawska Gteborg University Sweden This engaging book offers a fresh perspective on the burgeoning field of European management education and its intense concern with rankings. Using a creative mix of well-crafted research tools Wedlin deftly captures a professional field in transition as it both expands and develops shared standards. Walter W. Powell Stanford University US International comparisons and rankings of universities and business schools have proliferated in recent years. Ranking Business Schools provides a welcome analysis of this development and its implications for the field of management education. Theorizing the role of classifications such as rankings in forming and structuring organizational fields. Focusing on the European experience with rankings and the subsequent response the book illustrates how business schools use rankings to form identities and positions and to draw boundaries for the field By both creating and confirming belonging to a business school community and providing distinction within that group rankings are important for defining an international field of management education organizations constructing an international business school market and constitute an arena for debating and establishing the boundaries of this field Building an extensive theoretical framework for understanding classification

University Rankings William Yat Wai Lo, 2014-02-17 This book adopts a qualitative case study approach to provide the readers with a systematic delineation and interpretation of the implications of the university ranking phenomenon for Taiwan's higher education system It reviews the literature on different theories concerning the global transformation of higher education and presents basic information on higher education in Taiwan The author develops a four dimensional framework for the analysis of the ranking phenomenon in the island state First the technological ecological dimension aims to look into how the rankings have impacted Taiwan's higher education based on empirical findings from five Taiwanese public universities Next the technological geographical dimension examines how Taiwan can use rankings to promote its interests in global higher education The two conceptual dimensions focus on the relationship between the rankings and power in higher education They show how the phenomenon can be read and explained through theoretical lenses from ecological and geographical perspectives From an ecological perspective the empirical evidence suggests that the influence of rankings varies throughout the academic hierarchy in Taiwan The theoretical analysis then illustrates the relationship between the ranking phenomenon and the power structure in academic hierarchy Geographically while the empirical analysis is based on data from Taiwan the theoretical analysis offers essential insights that help readers to understand the changing global landscape of higher education and its implications in East Asia

University Rankings, Diversity, and the New Landscape of Higher Education, 2019-02-18 University rankings are a relatively new phenomenon in higher education Although quite an established practice in the U S it is only within the last decade that attempts to analyse university performance have spread to the rest of the world and that we also have seen new global rankings appear rankings attempting to measure university performance beyond national borders No wonder that this trend is accompanied by a growing interest in studying rankings throughout the world This book is written as part of the effort to better understand rankings and their effects on higher education A serious approach towards university rankings implies that rankings should be analysed properly including the methods used and the indicators chosen and investigate the objectives claimed If university rankings are considered as consumer information then everyone should have an interest in basing such guidance on valid and reliable data and methodology A serious analysis should also discuss the wider implications of rankings as an emerging phenomenon in higher education Consequently the contributions to this book investigate and analyse how different rankings work how they reach their conclusions and on what data and methodology they are built Furthermore it provides a critical reflection about the impact of rankings on higher education how and in what way rankings influence policy making the structure of the sector or the internal life of the sector Research Handbook on University Rankings Hazelkorn, Ellen, Mihut, Georgiana, 2021-12-10 Gathering unique and thoughtful contributions from leading international scholars this timely Research Handbook offers diverse perspectives on university rankings twenty years after the first global rankings emerged It presents an in depth analysis that reflects the current state of research on rankings their influence and impact

Leaders and Managers for 21st-Century Business: Curriculum Review at Columbia Business School N.

Capon, 2012-12-06 Business and management education has an important impact on business practice throughout the world To a very large extent possession of the MBA degree is a passport into the upper reaches of management and CEOs of many major corporations have earned an MBA. It is a reasonable inference that the education received by these leaders and managers during their MBA experience has an important impact on the way that businesses throughout the world are led and managed and that major corporate decisions are made. The heart of the MBA education is the curriculum and curriculum design is perhaps the most important strategic function for a business school faculty to undertake. In order to understand the many issues concerning this contemporary curriculum review, this book examines three related contextual domains. First, it details the long term growth of business and management education. Second, it examines the major theoretical and empirical literatures on organizational evolution and decision making, paying special attention to decision making in institutions of higher education. Finally, the book describes the previous major curriculum review at Columbia Business School in the late 1950s and the subsequent changes that formed the curriculum that was changed in 1992. This book demonstrates what can be achieved by an institution that sets high standards for its business education and assists faculty and administrators in other schools of business and management as they contemplate revision of their curricula. In addition, it provides a prime example of curriculum design effort in one of the leading institutions worldwide. Finally, it will be of interest to scholars in several different fields, notably higher education, curriculum review, organizational decision making, and long run organizational evolution. Management Education in India - Perspectives and Challenges Dharni P. Sinha, 2004-04-24. India as a nation has always provided room for innovations and entrepreneurship. This has given rise to some of the best global schools. This juggernaut will roll on not because of Government but in spite of them. It is hoped this volume will bring s

Global Themes and Local Variations in Organization and Management Gili S. Drori, Markus A. Höllerer, Peter Walgenbach, 2013-07-24. Global Themes and Local Variations in Organization and Management: Perspectives on Glocalization offers a broad exposition of the relations between the global and the local with regard to organizational and managerial ideas, practices, and forms. This edited volume forges ahead to capture the complexity of modern management and organization that results from the processes of glocalization. Universality is among the core underlying principles of the management of organizations as well as of organization and management science itself. Yet reality reveals enormous variation across social and cultural contexts. For instance, multinational corporations must adjust their management practices to adhere to national regulation and local standards; manufacturers and service providers routinely tailor their products to suit the local preferences of consumers; and non-profit organizations amend their advocacy agenda to appeal to local sentiments. The work assembled here goes beyond merely describing such patterns of variation and adaptation in organization and management research and commentary; it engages directly with the tensions between homogeneity and heterogeneity, convergence and divergence, global and local. With contributions from leading scholars in the field of comparative organization studies, this collection offers a substantive contribution to the investigation of organization and management as well as providing a valuable resource for students of organization studies, international business, and sociology.
