Clarke,1993 While the role of the laity in the nationalist awakening is commonly recognized their part in the movement for religious renewal is usually minimized Initiative on the part of the laity has been thought to have existed only outside the church where it remained a troubling and at times insurgent force Clarke revises this picture of the role of the laity in church and community He examines the rich associational life of the laity which ranged from nationalist and fraternal associations independent of the church to devotional and philanthropic associations affiliated with the church Associations both inside and outside the church fostered ethnic consciousness in different but complementary ways that resulted in a cultural consensus based on denominational loyalty Through these associations lay men and women developed an institutional base for the activism and initiative that shaped both their church and their community Clarke demonstrates that lay activists played a pivotal role in transforming the religious life of the community      Fish, Law, and Colonialism Douglas Colebrook Harris,2001-01-01 An engrossing history Fish Law and Colonialism recounts the human conflict over fish and fishing in British Columbia and of how that conflict was shaped by law Pacific salmon fisheries owned and managed by Aboriginal peoples were transformed in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries by commercial and sport fisheries backed by the Canadian state and its law Through detailed case studies of the conflicts over fish weirs on the Cowichan and Babine rivers Douglas Harris describes the evolving legal apparatus that dispossessed Aboriginal peoples of their fisheries Building upon themes developed in literatures on state law and local custom and law and colonialism he examines the contested nature of the colonial encounter on the scale of a river In doing so Harris reveals the many divisions both within and between government departments local settler societies and Aboriginal communities Drawing on government records statute books case reports newspapers missionary papers and a secondary anthropological literature to explore the roots of
