*Only status norms are provided for grades 9 and 10 general science. These status norms describe the distributions of achievement in general science academic skills and content knowledge for the relevant student populations for these grades and are useful for screening and placement purposes. Test results should not be used to evaluate performance where science content is more specialized, such as in typically differentiated high school science courses (e.g., biology, chemistry, physics).

the needs of individual students foster an environment of high expectations and meet the requirements of NCLB Revised Draft Environmental Impact Statement, Santa Fe National Forest Plan ,1985 RIT Stability Through the Transition to Common Core-Aligned MAP' Tests. How Using MAP to Measure Student Learning Growth is Reliable Now and in 2014 Northwest Evaluation Association,2013 While many educators expect the Common Core State Standards CCSS to be more rigorous than previous state standards some wonder if the transition to CCSS and to a Common Core aligned MAP test will have an impact on their students RIT scores or the NWEA norms MAP assessments use a proprietary scale known as the RIT Rasch unit scale to measure student achievement and growth The RIT scale based on item response theory IRT has been used since the late 1970s by NWEA and is a proven stable scale for educational assessment The principle behind the RIT scale is simple Test questions vary in difficulty and can be given a score on the RIT scale A student s achievement level can then be measured on the same scale by referencing the questions they were able to answer correctly Every item in MAP tests is calibrated against one of the stable RIT scales Reading Language Math or Science Student responses on these items are used to generate a final RIT score for each student An individual item with its associated RIT value may appear in tests aligned to various learning standards such as state standards and the Common Core State Standards Regardless of the standards alignment of a particular test a given item has a single RIT value associated with it This RIT value is obtained using a rigorous calibration process in which each item is field tested with thousands of students across the nation The purpose of MAP tests is to measure growth by examining RIT scores over time If two different MAP tests are on the same scale e g Math and measure similar constructs then scores for these two tests can be compared directly MAP tests aligned to CCSS as well as other state standards state aligned on a given scale measure similar constructs due to the high degree of content overlap among learning standards This underlying design of MAP tests is critical to ensuring that RIT scores carry the same meaning in terms of student ability regardless of which test was used to obtain them Because the RIT scales are independent of standards alignment transitioning between two tests is not anticipated to have a significant impact however States that are transitioning or who have already transitioned to teaching the CCSS and are working to understand the gap between their state standards and what s required by the CCSS are seeing some key shifts Those shifts are detailed in this report and questions and answers are provided
