Language Learning Step By Step:

Memory, Psychology and Second Language Learning Mick Randall, 2007 This book explores the contributions that cognitive linguistics and psychology including neuropsychology have made to the understanding of the way that second languages are processed and learnt It examines areas of phonology word recognition and semantics examining bottom up decoding processes as compared with top down processes as they affect memory It also discusses second language learning from the acquisition learning and nativist connectionist perspectives These ideas are then related to the methods that are used to teach second languages primarily English in formal classroom situations This examination involves both mainstream communicative approaches and more traditional methods widely used to teach EFL throughout the world The book is intended to act both as a textbook for students who are studying second language teaching and as an exploration of issues for the interested teacher who would like to further extend their understanding of the cognitive processes underlying their teaching Mick Randall is currently Senior Lecturer in TESOL and Head of the Institute of Education at the British University in Dubai He has taught courses in second language learning and teaching applied linguistics and psychology in a number of different contexts He has a special interest in the cognitive processing of language and in the psycholinguistics of word recognition spelling and reading

Multiple Case Study Analysis Robert E. Stake,2013-04-29

Examining situational complexity is a vital part of social and behavioral science research. This engaging text provides an effective process for studying multiple cases such as sets of teachers' staff development sessions or clinics operating in different locations within one complex program. The process also can be used to investigate broadly occurring phenomena without programmatic links such as leadership or sibling rivalry. Readers learn to design, analyze, and report studies that balance common issues across the group of cases with the unique features and context of each case. Three actual case reports from a transnational early childhood program illustrate the author's approach, and helpful reproducible worksheets facilitate multicase recording and analysis.

Steps to Successful Reading Margaret Cleveland, 2001. Provides a variety of nonfiction genres, ways to develop reading strategies, teaching tips, and strategies for addressing English language learners.

World Mission: The Biblical Jonathan Lewis, 1994. Back by popular demand, this three-volume work is now reprinted as a single volume. This manual leads the student into a deeper, broader mission understanding and vision by covering the Biblical historical foundations, the strategic dimensions, and cross-cultural considerations.
