Abstract

RESEARCH The authors used a 10-item scale that assesses the degree to which respondents agree or disagree with the statement, "I am not interested in participating in the [sic] group's decision-making." They used the mean of the responses to this item as an indicator of respondents' interest in participating in group decision-making. The mean score was calculated for each respondent and then the mean of the mean scores was calculated for each condition. The mean score for the control condition was 1.87 (SD = 1.04) and the mean score for the experimental condition was 1.54 (SD = 0.94). The difference between the two conditions was significant ($t = 2.14, p = .03$).
