Passage 2: The Wonders of Migration

Which two of the following details should be in your answer?

Animals migrate to escape dangerous predators. Many animals migrate to find food and water. Migration is essential for many species. All animals migrate in the fall when their food is scarce.

Why did the author write this passage?

- a) To explain how animals migrate.
- b) To compare different species of animals.
- c) To entertain readers with animal facts.
- d) To describe how animals migrate.

Whales, too, embark on long migrations. These massive creatures travel from warm waters where they feed during the summer to colder, southern waters to give birth. The cause of this migration is the need for warmer waters to safely give birth. If they stayed in the cold waters, their calves would not survive. This journey is crucial for the species, ensuring that young whales are born in safe environments.

Butterflies, especially the monarch butterfly, are also known for their remarkable migrations. Every fall, monarchs travel from Canada to Mexico, covering thousands of miles. They use the
