Subject: Final Edition of the Boeing Noise
Report: Comparing Design Documentation

Dear Sir / Madam,

It is with great pleasure that we hereby present to you the official edition of the Boeing 747-400 Airport Compatibility Study (BACS) documents. This product reflects that you are listed in that order in the Common Agreement Document (CAD) of the BACS, which you, along with a number of Civil Aviation Authorities, the Airports Council International Europe, the International Air Transport Association and others, have collectively agreed to publish in printed form, and is consistent with the principles outlined in AIA Article 40a "Operation of New Types Approved as Existing Aircraft" with the general objective of applying the attributes of the Boeing 747-400 to the physical aspects of operations in an effort to achieve compatibility.

Please note that the original draft of this document was agreed to by representatives of the BACS members by letter of 2006 and has been subsequently endorsed by a number of Civil Aviation Authorities (see pages 1-3-33 of the CAD) resulting in this version.

The entirety of the BACS Common Agreement Document and all of its appendices are found on the CD that is included in this letter. We encourage the use of the contents of this document to serve the needs of any airport or civil aviation authority with an interest in accommodating the 747-400 at their facilities.

This package is considered to be reproduced by AIAWorld, the signatory states (Germany, France, Australia, Italy and the Kingdom of the Netherlands), IATA, and The Boeing Company. Any questions may be directed to either AIA (aia@iata.org) or Boeing (aia@boeing.com) or Boeing (email: AirportCompatibility@boeing.com).

Thank you for your interest in this document and thank to all those whose efforts aided in the creation of its contents.

Very truly yours,
