Crosslinguistic Studies of Clause Combining Ritva Laury, 2008 The study of clause combining has been advanced lately by increasing interest in the study of actual language use in a typologically diverse set of languages A number of received understandings have been challenged among these the idea of clause combinations as being divisible into subordination and coordination in a binary fashion Connected to this idea is the nature of conjunctions a topic treated in several articles here Couched within the larger issue of the nature of categoriality in language several of the papers show that conjunctions are highly polyfunctional items and that clause combining is only one of the uses to which speakers put them Other topics treated in the volume are the historical development of conjunctions and the use of formulaic main clause constructions as projective units in conversation The articles manifest both typological and theoretical breadth They are based on data from Bulgarian English Estonian Finnish Indonesian Japanese and Spanish The theoretical approaches include discourse functional interactional historical and generative linguistics

Speech and Computer Albert Ali Salah, Alexey Karpov, Rodmonga Potapova, 2019-08-09 This book constitutes the proceedings of the 21st International Conference on Speech and Computer SPECOM 2019 held in Istanbul Turkey in August 2019 The 57 papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 86 submissions The papers

present current research in the area of computer speech processing including audio signal processing automatic speech recognition speaker recognition computational paralinguistics speech synthesis sign language and multimodal processing and speech and language resources Resources in Education ,1998 Frequency and the Emergence of Linguistic Structure Joan L. Bybee,Paul J. Hopper,2001-10-15 A mainstay of functional linguistics has been the claim that linguistic elements and patterns that are frequently used in discourse become conventionalized as grammar This book addresses the two issues that are basic to this claim first the question of what types of elements are frequently used in discourse and second the question of how frequency of use affects cognitive representations Reporting on evidence from natural conversation diachronic change variability child language acquisition and psycholinguistic experimentation the original articles in this book support two major principles First the content of people s interactions consists of a preponderance of subjective evaluative statements dominated by the use of pronouns copulas and intransitive clauses Second the frequency with which certain items and strings of items are used has a profound influence on the way language is broken up into chunks in memory storage the way such chunks are related to other stored material and the ease with which they are accessed to produce new utterances K-12 STEM Education in Urban Learning Environments Wendt, Jillian L.,Apugo, Danielle L.,2019-04-12 This title is an IGI Global Core Reference for 2019 as it provides the timeliest trending research around overcoming challenges within the urban educational system Featuring real world solutions and comprehensive coverage on teacher professional development racial microaggressions STEM and diversity in elementary and secondary education this publication is ideal for teachers faculty administrators policymakers and educational researchers K 12 STEM Education in Urban Learning Environments provides emerging research on the challenges and barriers of STEM education in urban environments and how to move forward in overcoming these challenges and barriers to provide equitable education for all K 12 students Featuring coverage on a broad range of topics such as teacher preparation programming gender and racial barriers and more this publication is ideally designed for teachers faculty administrators policymakers researchers and scholars Books in Print Supplement ,2002 A Companion to Linguistic Anthropology Alessandro Duranti,2008-04-15 A Companion to Linguistic Anthropology provides a series of in depth explorations of key concepts and approaches by some of the scholars whose work constitutes the theoretical and methodological foundations of the contemporary study of language as culture Provides a definitive overview of the field of linguistic anthropology comprised of original contributions by leading scholars in the field Summarizes past and contemporary research across the field and is intended to spur students and scholars to pursue new paths in the coming decades Includes a comprehensive bibliography of over 2000 entries designed as a resource for anyone seeking a guide to the literature of linguistic anthropology

Awareness Matters Claudia Finkbeiner,Agneta M.-L.Svalberg,2016-01-22 This collection argues that being aware of and reflecting on language form and language use is a powerful tool not only in language learning but also in wider society It adopts an interdisciplinary stance one chapter argues the need for Language Awareness in business contexts while another examines the role of critical cultural awareness and Language Awareness in education as bildung Others report on research studies in language classrooms and in teacher education Language Awareness is interrogated from a range of perspectives such as peer interaction teaching young learners learner strategies and strategies for writing online reading and oral fluency training The scope is global including contributions from Canada Germany Iran Japan Spain and the UK and covers bilingual as well as multilingual contexts The book will be of interest to language teachers language teacher educators other language professionals and generally to the language aware This book was originally published as a special issue of Language Awareness Text Mining of the Scientific Literature to Identify Pharmacogenomic Interactions Yael Garten, 2010

Pharmacogenomics is the study of how variation in the human genome impacts drug response in patients It is a major driving force of personalized medicine in which drug choice and dosing decisions are informed by individual information such as DNA genotype The field of pharmacogenomics is in an era of explosive growth massive amounts of data are being collected and knowledge discovered which promises to push forward the reality of individualized clinical care However this large amount of data is dispersed in many journals in the scientific literature and pharmacogenomic findings are discussed in a variety of non standardized ways It is thus challenging to identify important associations between drugs and molecular entities particularly genes and gene variants Thus these critical connections are not easily available to investigators or clinicians who wish to survey the state of knowledge for any particular gene drug disease or variant Manual efforts have attempted to catalog this information however the rapid expansion of pharmacogenomic literature has made this approach infeasible Natural Language Processing and text mining techniques allow us to convert free style text to a computable searchable format in which pharmacogenomic concepts such as genes drugs polymorphisms and diseases are identified and important links between these concepts are recorded My dissertation describes novel computational methods to extract and predict pharmacogenomic relationships from text In one project we extract pharmacogenomic relationships from the primary literature using text mining We process information at the fine grained sentence level using full text when available In a second project we investigate the use of these extracted relationships in place of manually curated relationships as input into an algorithm that predicts pharmacogenes for a drug of interest We show that for this application we can perform as well with text mined relationships as with manually curated information This approach holds great promise as it is cheaper faster and more scalable than manual curation Our method provides us with interesting drug gene relationship predictions that warrant further experimental investigation In the third project we describe knowledge inference in the context of pharmacogenomic relationships Using cutting edge natural language processing tools and automated reasoning we create a rich semantic network of 40 000 pharmacogenomic relationships distilled from 17 million Medline abstracts This network connects over 200 entity types with clear semantics using more than 70 unique types of relationships We use this network to create collections of precise and specific types of knowledge and infer relationships not stated explicitly in the text but rather inferred from the large number of related sentences found in the literature This is exciting because it demonstrates that we are able to overcome the heterogeneity of written language and infer the correct semantics of the relationship described by authors Finally we can use this network to identify conflicting facts described in the literature to study change in language use over time and to predict drug drug interactions These achievements provide us with new ways of interacting with the literature and the knowledge embedded within it and help ensure that we do not bury the knowledge embodied in the publications but rather connect the often fragmented and disconnected pieces of knowledge spread across millions of articles in hundreds of journals We are thereby brought one step closer to the realization of personalized medicine and ensure that as scientists we continue to build on the knowledge discovered by past generations and truly to stand on the shoulders of giants
