The Andes Mountains

Read the following text and answer the questions below.

The Andes Mountains are a major mountain range in South America, stretching over 9,000 kilometers (5,600 miles) along the western coast of the continent. They are the longest mountain range on the continent and the second longest in the world, after the Himalayas.

The Andes Mountains are home to many different types of ecosystems, including tropical rainforests, dry forests, and high-altitude grasslands. They are also home to many different types of animals, including llamas, alpacas, and vicuñas.

The Andes Mountains are also home to many different types of people, including the Inca, Aztec, and Mayan civilizations. They are still home to many indigenous people today.

The Andes Mountains are a very important part of South America. They provide a natural barrier between the continent and the Pacific Ocean. They also provide a source of water for many of the people who live in the region.

The Andes Mountains are a very beautiful part of the world. They are home to some of the most amazing views in the world. They are also home to many different types of plants and animals.

not offer a readily defined set of problems for human exploitation as do for instance tropical forests or arctic habitats But the archaeological evidence had shown that humans have been living in this type of habitat for thousands of year From this evidence we can also see that mountainous regions are often frontier zones of competing polities and form refuge areas for dissident communities as they often are inherently difficult to control by centralized authorities As a consequence they fuel or contribute disproportionately to political violence But we are now witnessing changes and increasing vulnerability of mountain ecosystems caused by human activities Human adaptability to mountain ecosystems This volume presents an international and interdisciplinary account of the exploitation of and human adaptation to mountainous regions over time The contributions discuss human cultural responses to key physical and cultural stressors associated with mountain ecosystems such as aridity quality of soils steep slopes low productivity as well as transient phenomena such as changing weather patterns deforestation and erosion and the possible effects of climate change This volume will be of interest to anthropologists ecologists and geologists as mountainous landscapes change fast and cultures disappear and they need to be recorded and mountain regions are of interest for studies on environmental change and cultural responses of mountain populations provide clues for us all Critical to understanding mountain adaptations is our comprehension of human decision making and how people view short and long term outcomes
