

IV. Developmental Aspects of the Nervous System

TYPES OF CEREBRAL PALSY

Cerebral refers to the affected area of the brain, the cerebrum, and palsy refers to disorder of movement. Cerebral palsy is caused by damage to the motor control centers of the young developing brain and can occur during pregnancy, during childbirth, or after birth up to about age three.

- A. The nervous system begins to form in the first month of embryonic development. Therefore maternal and environmental factors may impair brain development. Mothers that smoke impair the bodies ability to carry oxygen sufficiently which increased the chances of oxygen deprivation to the babies brain cells that are forming. Other severe congenital brain disorders include cerebral palsy which is thought to be caused by a temporary lack of oxygen during delivery. Furthermore, premature babies have trouble regulating their temperature because the hypothalamus is one of the last brain areas to mature prenatally.
- B. The development of motor control indicates the progressive myelination and maturation of a child's nervous system.

Brain Development and Epilepsy Philip A. Schwartzkroin, 1995 In recent years developmental neurobiologists have made significant progress toward understanding the processes that determine normal organization and function of the central nervous system Although this research provides the necessary basis for examining the factors that contribute to the age dependent expression of seizures there has been surprisingly little communication between developmental neurobiologists and the clinicians who deal with pediatric epilepsy patients An understanding of normal and pathological functions in the immature central nervous system requires a special appreciation of developmentally unique mechanisms This integrated volume applies the emerging concepts in developmental neurobiology to an understanding of the origins of the epilepsies of childhood Early chapters give a picture of the age specific epileptic syndromes and their associated pathologies and describe experimental approaches toward understanding the basic mechanisms underlying these clinical phenomena The following chapters provide an outline of developmental properties that may be critical to the generation of abnormal excitability and pose hypotheses about pathological consequences of mistakes in key developmental processes The final chapters attempt to integrate our knowledge of both maturational and epileptogenic mechanisms as a means not only for understanding epilepsies of the immature organism but also for developing more effective treatment of these often devastating syndromes
