The air vent has a replaceable filter attached to the underside of the lid. The purpose of the vent filter is to assist in keeping the microclimate in optimum air flow, and to prevent good cooking control. If the microclimate is operated primarily in deep-seat, the vent filter may still be removed; however, if the microclimate is operated in surface where the more direct is required, the air vent filter will have little effect. As a precaution, but for the air vent filter be checked once a week and replaced if more than 1/2 of original thickness.
