Balaban, 2012-12-06 It was Faraday who in 1821 said that there are three necessary stages of useful research The first to begin it the second to end it and the third 1 to publish it There has since indeed been so much research and publication that we have become increasingly alarmed by the galloping proliferation of scientific information produced in relation to the user's ability to retrieve and consume it effectively conveniently and creatively In 1948 to deal with this concern the Royal Society Scientific Information Conference held in London spanned the whole realm of scientific information Sir Robert Robinson President of the Royal Society in his opening address noted that the study of scientific information services in all its ramifications has enormous scope and the London conference dealt with scientific publication format editorial policy subject grouping organization abstracting reviews classification indexing and training of information officers It was about this time that information science began to develop more on the retrieval end so it seems logical that the first editors group founded in 1949 was ICSU AB the International Council of Scientific Unions Abstract ing Board In 1958 the National Academy of Sciences International Conference of 2 Scientific Information in Washington limited its interests and expanded on the later phases of the life cycle of information storage and retrieval

The Role of Systems Methodology in Social Science Research R. Cavallo, 2012-12-06

While general systems research has had a considerable impact on research in the social sciences, this impact has been mainly conceptual and has not served to provide the operational and methodological aids for research which are possible. In addition, many of those systems-oriented directions and results which do impact social science research have developed independently and in piecemeal fashion in recent decades. The main development of this book is a cohesive framework within which to integrate results of general systems research and which provides a means for the organization of data and observations and operational procedures by which to proceed in the investigation and study of social and socio-technical systems. The book systematically develops in the first five chapters all of the basic concepts and aspects which make up the framework, showing wherever possible the main sources of these concepts and placing them in historical perspective. The developments of the first five chapters are pulled together and integrated in the last chapter into a conceptual and operational general systems problem-solving framework which extends the investigative capabilities of researchers of specific systems. The last chapter also contains an example of an overall investigation which utilizes the framework and which proceeds from system definition through the derivation of explanatory knowledge regarding the object system and which illustrates in detail most of the concepts and elements of the framework.
