Application of LC-MS/MS in the Mycotoxins Studies Laura Gámiz-Gracia,Ana M. García-Campaña,Natalia Arroyo-Manzanares,2020-06-17 Mycotoxins are secondary metabolites produced by the fungi of different species mainly Aspergillus Fusarium and Penicillium with toxic effects for humans and animals These mycotoxins can contaminate food and feed The European Union EU has established the maximum permitted or recommended levels for well known mycotoxins in different foodstuffs However there are other mycotoxins that are not included in the regulations the emerging mycotoxins whose toxicity is still not clear and the modified or masked mycotoxins produced as a consequence of a detoxification strategy of the host plant of the fungus or during food processing These mycotoxins could pose a risk and should also be taken into account In order to assure consumers health analytical methods for the accurate determination of mycotoxins in different food matrices and feeds are required In this sense liquid chromatography tandem mass spectrometry LC MS MS is a powerful tool for their unique identification and quantification Moreover the use of high resolution mass spectrometry HRMS allows one to identify novel mycotoxins and targeted untargeted approaches for study This Special Issue compiles recent applications of LC MS MS in mycotoxin studies as well as the development and validation of new analytical methods for their identification and quantification in different food matrices and feed occurrence studies and the biomonitoring of mycotoxins and their metabolites in biological fluids Contamination of Water Arif Ahamad,Sharf Elahi Siddiqui,Pardeep Singh,2021-08-06 Water containing significant amounts of inorganic and organic contaminants can have serious environmental consequences and serious health implications when ingested Contamination of Water Health Risk Assessment and Treatment Strategies takes an interconnected look at the various pollutants the source of contamination the effects of contamination on aquatic ecosystems and human health and what the potential mitigation strategies are This book is organized into three sections The first section examines the sources of potential contamination This includes considering the current scenario of heavy metal and pesticide contamination in water as well as the regions impacted due to industrialization mining or urbanization The second section goes on to discuss water contamination and health risks caused by toxic elements radiological contaminants microplastics and nanoparticles and pharmaceutical and personal care products This book concludes with a section exploring efficient low cost treatment technologies and remediation strategies that remove toxic pollutants from water Contamination of Water incorporates both theoretical and practical information that will be useful for researchers professors graduate students and professionals working on water contamination environmental and health impacts and the management and treatment of water resources Provides practical case studies of various types and sources of contamination Discusses inorganic and organic contaminants and their impact on human health Evaluates effective water treatment and remediation technologies to remove toxins from water and minimize risk Trees in a Sub-Saharan

Multi-functional Landscape Paxie W. Chirwa, Stephen Syampungani, Theodore M. Mwamba, 2024-10-01 Africa is largely dependent on natural resources in its quest to achieve sustainable development goals with its woodlands and forests known to be among the most exploited ecosystems Anthropogenic pressure has led to the progressive conversion of these woodlands and forests into patches of regrowth stands savanna and cropland systems Expansion with intensification of agricultural land and the unsustainable use of fuelwood biomass are among the major drivers of such landscape transformations and the associated decline of biodiversity and ecosystem services This phenomenon is growing in magnitude and significance with emerging environmental issues including climate change biological invasion and pollution arising from various land use practices thereby jeopardizing Africa's development pathway Agroforestry holds promises to reverse this trend as it provides the potential for designing multifunctional agricultural landscapes that guarantee trade offs of food security biodiversity conservation and ecosystem services Africa is characterized by highly variable ecological conditions and remarkable cultural diversity that influence the conception of landscape multifunctionality Drawing upon the vast experience of researchers and many other professionals in Africa this book contextualizes the roles of trees in African multifunctional landscapes capturing the biophysical and societal diversity in the region while scrutinizing the ongoing trend of landscape multifunctionality in Africa with reference to the global scenario It is designed to provide a holistic and comprehensive understanding of the various roles of trees in African landscapes and shed light on the underlying functional attributes of trees which will help readers to generate a better insight and problem solving approach for landscape multifunctionality in the context of Africa This book defines the multifunctional landscapes with reference to an African context The book has fourteen chapters covering five broad thematic areas i the multiple services functions and role of trees in multifunctional landscapes ii tree based production systems products and their contributions to rural livelihoods iii drivers of land cover changes and their impacts iv approaches for managing resources to integrate trees in multifunctional landscapes and v external factors affecting landscape resources management in Africa Integrated Annual Report ... Broadband Infraco, 2016
