These findings suggest that the primary mechanism of action of the intervention is through the reduction of the number of cigarettes smoked per day, rather than through the reduction of the number of cigarettes smoked per week. This is consistent with the findings of the previous studies, which have shown that the primary mechanism of action of the intervention is through the reduction of the number of cigarettes smoked per day (10,11).

These various elements will determine the operation of the system and consequently the cost. When planning to use a system for the first time, the system may be subject to a significant variation from the expected behavior. It is possible to use the system as the system is being designed and to make necessary changes to the system as the system is being used.
