108 Structure of the Mammalian Heart

Key ideas: Mammals have a four-chambered heart, divided into left and right halves, and acting as a double pump. The heart is the centre of the human circulatory system. It is a hollow, muscular organ made up of four chambers (two atria and two ventricles) that alternately fill and empty of blood, acting as a double pump. The left side pumps the oxygenated blood to the rest of the body, and the right side pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs.

Human heart structure (anterior view)

Arrows indicate oxygenated blood in the heart and body. Blood enters the heart from the right atrium. Deoxygenated blood enters the right atrium. The right ventricle pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs. The left atrium receives oxygenated blood from the lungs. The left ventricle pumps oxygenated blood to the rest of the body.

The heart is not a symmetrical organ. Although the majority of blood pumped to each side is the same, the ratio of the two volumes is always 1:1. The ratio of the two volumes is always 1:1. The ratio of the two volumes is always 1:1.

1. In the schematic diagram of the heart below, label the four chambers and the main vessels entering and leaving them. Then complete the diagram of blood flow. Use the large coloured circles to mark the direction of flow of the blood.
