1 To 31 April 2015 Social Auxiliary Work Job:

Chinese Labour Law Yan Wang, 2021-11-30 This book provides an overall understanding of Chinese labour law and covers many important issues related to the application of Chinese labour law. Particularly, the book explains the difficult points in Chinese labour law from the perspective of juridical practice. Many typical cases are selected to illustrate the important issues in Chinese labour law. These cases are from the courts in the developed areas in China where foreign funded enterprises gather. Also, the book addresses the implications of the Civil Code on the labour law. The latest developments are reflected in the book which include guidelines related to labour dispute case hearing formulated by the Higher Courts in many provinces and the guiding cases released by the Supreme Court. Such developments are the reflections of fragmented judicial application of Chinese labour law.

Para Power Nick Juravich, 2024-12-10 Paraprofessional educators entered US schools amidst the struggles of the late 1960s. Immersed in the crisis of care in public education, paras improved systems of education and social welfare despite low pay and second rate status. Understanding paras as key players in Black and Latino struggles for jobs and freedom, Nick Juravich details how the first generation of paras in New York City transformed work in public schools and the relationships between schools and the communities they served. Paraprofessional programs created hundreds of thousands of jobs in working class Black and Latino neighborhoods. These programs became an important pipeline for the training of Black and Latino teachers in the 1970s and early 1980s while paras organizing helped drive the expansion and integration of public sector unions. An engaging portrait of an invisible profession, Para Power examines the lives and practices of the first generation of paraprofessional educators against the backdrop of struggles for justice, equality and self-determination.

The Gender Pay Gap and Social Partnership in Europe Hazel Conley, Donata Gottardi, Geraldine Healy, Barbara Mikołajczyk, Marco Peruzzi, 2018-12-06 The gender pay gap (GPG) exists in every European country but it varies considerably even in EU member states covered by the same legal principles on pay equality. Part of the variation can be explained by different patterns of social partnership. With current policy pressure to de-centralise collective bargaining and increase the percentage of pay linked to productivity, what role can social partnership play in tackling the GPG? Reporting on the findings of the European Commission funded research project 'Close the Deal: Fill the Gap', this book uses an interdisciplinary analysis involving legal, economic and sociological expertise to explore the role of social partnership in GPG in Italy, Poland and the UK. Selected on the basis of their contrasting profiles in terms of legal regulation, industrial relations systems of collective bargaining, coverage of collective agreements and differing rates of the GPG, the in-depth study provides important insights into the main issues underlying the problem of reducing the gender pay gap which have led to guidelines in the negotiation of arrangements on GPG related issues. Based on a unique comparative interdisciplinary and action oriented research project it will be of great interest to all researchers and advanced students with an interest in women's representation in the workforce and the gender pay gap as well as practitioners and policy makers in organisations such as trade unions and employers associations

The Schenley Experiment Jake Oresick, 2017-04-14 The Schenley Experiment is the story of Pittsburgh's first public high school a social incubator in a largely segregated city that was highly even improbably successful throughout its 156 year existence Established in 1855 as Central High School and reorganized in 1916 Schenley High School was a model of innovative public education and an ongoing experiment in diversity Its graduates include Andy Warhol actor Bill Nunn and jazz virtuoso Earl Hines and its prestigious academic program and pensions lured such teachers as future Pulitzer Prize winner Willa Cather The subject of investment as well as destructive neglect the school reflects the history of the city of Pittsburgh and provides a study in both the best and worst of urban public education practices there and across the Rust Belt Integrated decades before Brown v Board of Education Schenley succumbed to default segregation during the white flight of the 1970s it rose again to prominence in the late 1980s when parents camped out in six day long lines to enroll their children in visionary superintendent Richard C Wallace's reinvigorated school Although the historic triangular building was a cornerstone of its North Oakland neighborhood and a showpiece for the city of Pittsburgh officials closed the school in 2008 citing over 50 million in necessary renovations a controversial event that captured national attention Schenley alumnus Jake Oresick tells this story through interviews historical documents and hundreds of first person accounts drawn from a community indelibly tied to the school A memorable important work of local and educational history his book is a case study of desegregation magnet education and the changing nature and legacies of America's oldest public schools

Public Sector Shock Daniel Vaughan-Whitehead, 2013 After a first series of policy responses to the 2008-09 crisis aimed at sustaining domestic demand through expansionary anti crisis packages most European governments starting with Greece Ireland Bulgaria and Romania and followed by many others have since put in place a series of restrictive budgetary policies aimed at reducing their budget deficits With these new policies a significant number of jobs and wages have been cut in the public sector A number of expenditure items related to education and training have also been cut These reforms have given rise to waves of protest throughout Europe The goal of this volume is to study this public sector shock While budgetary reforms seek to ensure a more balanced and sound economic policy they may generate new work inequalities among public sector employees most particularly among women who account for a considerable proportion of public sector employment Cuts in education and training may also have an impact on the quality of human capital in both the public and private sectors despite the fact that the recent crisis has shown the value of education as employees with better skills and training are more likely to maintain their jobs and incomes The authors explore a number of questions including what types of reform have been implemented in the public sector and what are their implications in both the short and long term On the economic side what will be the impact on wages and on job quantity and quality On the social side what will the effects be on inequality and social cohesion

 And what will be the outcome for and potential role of social partners and social dialogue On the basis of a comparative and comprehensive assessment illustrated by case studies in education health and public administration policy issues are discussed with the aim of finding the right mix of public sector reforms Contributors S Altwicker H mori J I Ant n D Anxo G
