While lifting a plastic-cased battery, excessive pressure on the end walls could cause acid to spew through the vent caps, resulting in personal injury. Lift with a battery carrier or with your hands on opposite corners.

Use of Jumper Cables

WARNING — To avoid harm to yourself or damage to your vehicle or battery, follow these directions in order. If in doubt, call for road service.

- Use only a 12-volt jumper system. You can damage a 12-volt starting motor and ignition system beyond repair by connecting it to a 24-volt power supply (two 12-volt batteries in series, or a 24-volt motor generator set).
- Do not disconnect the battery of the vehicle to be started. Disconnecting the battery could damage the vehicle's electrical system.
- Make sure vehicles do not touch one another. Set the parking brake fully on each. Stay clear of the engine cooling fan.
- Turn on the heater blower motor of the vehicle to be started. Turn off all other switches and lights on both vehicles.
- Make jumper cable connections. (See illustration.)
 - Connect one end of the first jumper cable to positive (+) terminal of the dead battery and the other end to the positive (+) terminal of the booster battery.
 - Connect one end of the second jumper cable to negative (—) terminal of the booster battery, and the other end to an engine bolthead or good metallic contact spot on the engine of the vehicle to be started. Do not attach the other end to the negative (—) battery terminal, because a spark could occur and cause explosion of gases normally present around the battery.

- Make sure the jumper cables are not in the way of moving engine parts.
- Start the engine of the vehicle with the booster battery. Run the engine at a moderate speed.
- Start the engine of the vehicle with the dead battery.
- Leave all switches off except heater blower motor and reduce engine speed to idle on both vehicles to prevent possible damage to the vehicle's electrical system.
- Remove cables in reverse order.
 - Remove the end of the jumper cable from the engine of the vehicle with the dead battery.
 - Remove the end of the jumper cable from the negative (—) terminal of the booster battery.
 - Remove the end of the jumper cable from the positive (+) terminal of the booster battery.
 - Remove the end of the jumper cable from the positive (+) terminal of the dead battery.
