Robinson, Donna Kotsopoulos, Adam K. Dubé, 2023-06-15 This book focusses on teaching and learning in elementary and middle school mathematics and suggests practices for teachers to help children be successful mathematical thinkers Contributions from diverse theoretical and disciplinary perspectives are explored Topics include the roles of technology language and classroom discussion in mathematics learning the use of creativity visuals and teachers physical gestures to enhance problem solving inclusive educational activities to promote children s mathematics understanding how learning in the home can enhance children s mathematical skills the application of mathematics learning theories in designing effective teaching tools and a discussion of how students teachers teacher educators and school boards differentially approach elementary and middle school mathematics This book and its companion Mathematical Cognition and Understanding take an interdisciplinary perspective to mathematical learning and development in the elementary and middle school years The authors and perspectives in this book draw from education neuroscience developmental psychology and cognitive psychology The book will be relevant to scholars educators in the field of mathematics education and also those in childhood development and cognition Each chapter also includes practical tips and implications for parents as well as for educators and researchers High-Level Adaptation and Aftereffects Rocco Palumbo, Stefania D'Ascenzo, Luca Tommasi, 2017-04-28 Aftereffects generally occur after a prolonged exposure adaptation to a first stimulus possessing one given property followed by presentation of a stimulus bearing a neutral value of that property The aftereffect consists in a change in appearance of the neutral stimulus following the adapter compared to the appearance of the neutral stimulus when it is perceived without any previous exposure to the adapter The transient phenomena of perceptual aftereffects are believed to depend on the activation of neuron populations that respond selectively to a given property of the stimuli Studying how adaptation occurs which stimulus properties are sensitive to it which timings are necessary whether individual differences modulate its occurrence has thus become an indirect way to probe the plasticity of sensory functions in the nervous system recently extending to more cognitive and representational aspects of neural coding In the last two decades indeed it has been demonstrated that aftereffects occur not only for low level properties of stimuli such as motion color or orientation but also for high level properties Many studies have proven that high level proprieties of the stimuli e g gender identity ethnicity or age of a face or a voice are sensitive to this phenomenon It has been shown for example that the prolonged exposure to a female or male face produces a gender misperception in the opposite direction when an androgynous face is shown after the adapter Furthermore recent studies have also shown that aftereffects are not strictly contingent upon the physical features that make up stimuli but they seem to run across the high level properties subjects are adapted to. These evidences are supported by cross category adaptation studies which underlie how aftereffects occur even across stimuli that do not share physical features e.g. bodies and faces but that instead share common higher level properties such as gender. Given the growing body of research focused on adaptation and aftereffects in high level perception at the boundaries with perceptual learning, attention and cognition, the purpose of this topic is to provide a picture of the state of the art relative to the specific phenomena of adaptation in high level perceptual processing.

Exemplars of Curriculum Theory Arthur K. Ellis, 2014-01-09. This book crosses the divide between theoreticians and practitioners by demonstrating how curriculum theories and models are applied in classrooms today. It ties together broad educational theories such as progressivism, essentialism, perennialism etc. curriculum models characterized as learner centered, society centered or knowledge centered and exemplars of curriculum theories and models such as Reggio Emilia, Core Knowledge, the International Baccalaureate etc.
