

LESSON 1: THE ETHICAL DIMENSION OF HUMAN EXISTENCE

Prepared by: KRISTEL JEAN B. YCOY, LPT

VALUE

Ethics, generally speaking, is about matters such as the good thing that we should pursue and the bad thing that we should avoid; the right ways in which we could or should act and the wrong ways of acting. It is about what is acceptable and unacceptable in human behaviour. It may involve obligations that we are expected to fulfil, prohibitions that we are required to respect, or ideals that we are encouraged to meet.

Ethics as a subject for us to study is about determining the grounds for values with particular and special significance to human life.

Kinds of Valuation

Our first point of clarification is to recognize that there are instances when we make value judgments that are not considered to be part of ethics.

1. Aesthetics – from the Greek word "aisthesis" which means "sense" or "feeling" and refers to the judgments of personal approval or disapproval that we make about what we see, hear, smell, or taste.
 - For instance, I could say that value judgments that this new movie I had just seen was a "good" one because I enjoyed it, or a song I had just heard on the radio was a "bad" one because it had an unpleasant tone, but these are not part of a discussion of ethics. I may have an opinion as to what is the "right" dip (sawsawan) for my chicken barbecue, or I may maintain that it is "wrong" to wear a leather vest over a Barong Tagalog, and these are not concerns of ethics. These are valuations that fall under the domain of aesthetics.
2. Etiquette – concerned with right or wrong actions, but those which might be considered not quite grave enough to a discussion on ethics.
 - Similarly, we have a sense of approval or disapproval concerning certain actions which can be considered relatively more trivial in nature. Thus, for instance, I may think that it is "right" to knock politely on someone's door, while it is "wrong" to barge into one's office. Perhaps I may approve of a child who knows how to ask for something properly by saying "please" and otherwise, disapprove of a woman that I see picking her nose in public. These and other similar examples belong to the category of etiquette.
3. Technical – from the Greek word "techne" and refers to a proper way – (or right way of doing things.)
 - This could also be when learning how to bake, for instance. I am told
 - that the right thing to do would be to mix the dry ingredients first, such as flour or sugar before bringing in any liquids, like milk or cream; this is the right thing to do in baking, but not one that belongs to a discussion of ethics. This could also be when learning how to play basketball, I am instructed that it is against the rules to walk more than two steps without dribbling the ball; again, obeying this rule to not travel is

Fundamental Ethics Patricia McAuliffe, 1993 In this stimulating rethinking of the basic foundations of ethics Patricia McAuliffe derives a fundamental ethic from liberation theology She asserts that the experience of resisting suffering especially oppressive social suffering must be brought from the fringe to the very center of ethics Arguing for the conceptual priority of ethics over religion McAuliffe defines an innovative ethic based on experience and practice Ethics precedes religion and theology because experience and practice precede theory and interpretation which are the human activities of religion and theology knowledge is based on experience She proposes that ethics can be independent of religion but that while her liberationist ethic can be either Christian or universal finally the poor and oppressed are the paradigm source of the disclosure of God and of final salvation In rethinking the basic foundations of ethics she compares a liberationist ethic including Latin American and women's liberation theology with various classical ethics and examines and critiques the works of Edward Schillebeeckx Juan Luis Segundo Dorothee Soelle James Gustafson and George Lindbeck McAuliffe offers a flexible ethic that balances the absolute and the relative the particular and the universal personal and social creativity and conditioning practice and theory and the ethical and religious Combining superior scholarship with an original and creative approach to ethics this book is likely to create debate in the fields of fundamental ethics theology and philosophy

Communitarian Ethics John Charvet, 2023-11-25 Ethics is understood as a social practice developed by human beings through their living together as members of actual communities Implicit in communal membership is a mutual commitment to pursue one's good within common and binding rules Whereas individualism holds that the rights and duties of human beings arise from their inherent worth as individuals communitarianism says that our rights and duties arise from participation in the ethical entity that is created through communal bonds The book derives from this ethical idea some basic substantive norms that are valid for every political community Secondly it applies the ethical idea to some fundamental variations in communal forms but focuses especially on modern industrial economies and their appropriate political superstructures The third part of the book discusses attempts to create a global ethical community in the form of a community of states that treat each other and each other's members as ethical ends despite disagreements over the actual
