Graf, 1992-01-01 Battery Chargers and Testers Charles R. Cantonwine, 1971 Battery Chargers and Charging Robert A. Harvey, 1953 Design of a Lead Acid Battery Charger System, With the lack of centralized power grids lead acid batteries have taken the place of one of the main energy sources available in developing countries. With this in mind our objective was to design a cheap versatile and efficient lead acid car battery charger which will interest and appeal to the cost minded customer. Lead acid batteries are finding considerable use as both primary and backup power sources. For complete battery utilization the charger circuit must charge the battery to full capacity while minimizing over charging for extended battery life. In our circuit we have used a voltage regulator and comparator to regulate the voltage supply to the battery for effective charging. Four LED s are used to indicate the status of battery charge. This circuit was simulated using a simulation software called Multisim a product of National Instruments Design and Construction of a Thyristor Controlled Automatic Battery Charger Gloria Ehiem-iwuji, Battery Charger with Alarm Application Radin Mohd Akhimullah Mohd Idrus, 2008. Unlike any other battery charger this project is about the combination of battery charger circuit with alarm circuit. The main objective of this project is the alarm will send signal to the user. Thus the user will know that the batteries are already fully charged. It consists of 3 segments the power supply charging circuit and alarm circuit. In this project the charging process is focus more on AA batteries. The heart of the circuit located at LM324. It is the segment that controlling the charging process of the whole circuit. 2 pins are required. First pin pin 12 is for Upper Limit Set while the second pin pin 9 is for lower limit set. This both pin sending the signal as a reference value. The upper limit send an information that the batteries is overcharged while the lower limit send the information about batteries deep discharge. Both of them are controlled by a potentiometer. When this is happen the LM324 will send signal to the transistor. This transistor than operates thus energizes the relay coil. When the relay retracted the charging process is halt and at the same time operates the buzzer. The buzzer will continue to ring until the charger is turn off 12v Car Battery Float Charger Project Michael Lee Bunyard, 2005-01-01.
