13.5 Cycling of Matter

AL.8

KEY CONCEPT Matter cycles in and out of an ecosystem.

VOCABULARY

hydrologic cycle
biogeochemical cycle
nitrogen fixation

MAIN IDEAS

- Water cycles through the environment.
- Elements essential for life also cycle through ecosystems.
- Natural and human activities can disrupt biogeochemical cycles and ecosystems.

AL.8 Develop and use models to describe the cycling of matter [e.g., carbon, nitrogen, water] and flow of energy [e.g., food chains, food webs, biomass pyramids, ten percent law] between abiotic and biotic factors in ecosystems.

Connect to Your World

Since life in most ecosystems requires a constant inflow of energy from the Sun, Earth is an open system in terms of energy. However, in terms of matter, such as oxygen and carbon, Earth is a closed system. Today's Earth has roughly the same amount of carbon as it had billions of years ago, meaning that the same carbon atoms that make up your body may once have been part of a tree, or gases spewed by a volcano, or even part of a dinosaur.

CONNECT TO

PROPERTIES OF WATER

The presence of water is necessary for life on Earth. All organisms depend on the simple structure of the water molecule. As you learned in the chapter Chemistry of Life, water has several unique properties. Water's high specific heat helps keep cells at the right temperature to carry out life processes.

MAIN IDEA

Water cycles through the environment.

Matter changes form, but it does not disappear. It can be used over and over again in a continuous cycle. If you crush a rock, for example, it does not vanish. Instead, it turns into sand and other bits of minerals. Although matter may change form over time, the total amount of matter remains the same.

As you learned earlier, a major part of life on Earth is water, which has a cycle of its own. The hydrologic cycle (HY-druh-LAHJ-ihk), also known as the water cycle, is the circular pathway of water on Earth from the atmosphere, to the surface, below ground, and back. Part of that pathway involves humans and other organisms, which all have bodies made mostly of water.

As shown in FIGURE 5.1, precipitation, such as rain or snow, falls to Earth. Some of this precipitation seeps into the ground, some drops into ponds, streams, lakes, or other waterways, and some forms puddles or other temporary pools. Depending on the type of soil and rocks surrounding it and also on its location, groundwater may empty directly into oceans. Sometimes water flows first into lakes, swamps, or wetlands, but these—along with rivers, streams, and other freshwater sources—also feed into oceans.

In addition, some droplets of water quickly reenter the atmosphere through evaporation. Since oceans cover over 70 percent of Earth's surface, about 85 percent of Earth's evaporation occurs between the oceans and the atmosphere. On land, water vapor is released by plants during transpiration, which is evaporation that occurs between plant leaves and the atmosphere. The cycle is completed as water vapor in the atmosphere condenses and forms clouds, returning water to the surface once again in the form of precipitation.

Analyze If the total amount of water on Earth does not change, why are there concerns about global freshwater shortages?
