

Ending Reconstruction

By the 1870s, Reconstruction was growing widely unpopular in the South. Radical Republicans lost influence during the 1870s, and Reconstruction slowed down. Southern Democrats argued that leaving Southern farmers out of the decision-making process harmed the South. Violent groups like the Ku Klux Klan frightened and intimidated Republican leaders.

Many factors led to the end of Reconstruction in the South. President Ulysses S. Grant and his administration tried to pass laws to prevent violent attacks from the Klan. Many of these laws were unpopular. Republicans turned away from their radical ideas and grew more careful in their lawmaking. White supremacy increased in the South. An economic depression forced much of the South into poverty. The poverty in the South under republican leadership caused voters to consider democrats as an alternative.

In 1875, Southern Democrats in Mississippi used violence to take control. President Grant refused to send federal troops to help in Mississippi. This showed the South that the federal government was no longer supportive of Reconstruction.

The election of 1876 would result in the end of Reconstruction and lead to democratic control of the South. The Democratic Party won control of the House of Representatives for the first time since the Civil War. Presidential candidate Rutherford B. Hayes won the election by promising democrats control of the South. The election of 1876 ended Reconstruction—but civil rights for black Americans would be a long, hard-fought battle for the next 100 years.
