The Future

Ancient Civilizations

- Air pollution was common in large towns long before the industrial revolution. The pollution came from dust, wood smoke, tanneries, animal manure and other things.
- Water pollution was less severe in some civilizations. Israeli and Hindu cities tended to have less water pollution due to strict religious codes about cleanliness. On the other hand, ancient Rome was notorious for sewage-filled streets.
- Timbering stripped the forests of Babylon, Greece, Phoenicia (Lebanon) and Italy with the rise of civilization. The wood energy crisis led Greeks to use passive solar energy by orienting their cities and houses toward the sun. Romans made some use of solar energy but imported wood for timber and fuel from as far away as the Black Sea. Both Greeks and Romans kept sacred groves of trees from being timbered.

An Introduction to Green Process Management Samuel E. Windsor, 2010-02-08 The intent of this book is to give interested parties an overview of green and its impact on business without spending countless hours researching the subject It provides information in a manner that can be used to help businesses determine the role green will play in their futures The book is not intended as a detailed implementation guide but as an aid in understanding the current thinking on what green really is and what an organization can do The book is presented in three major sections The first section is intended to give an overall understanding of what is meant by green a brief history of the environmental movement as it relates to business trends in carbon measuring and reporting and definitions of green The second section discusses standards certifications and measurements that relate to green and environmental management The final section presents methods that may be used to implement and manage green processes within an organization along with tools and a road map that may be used by those companies seeking to become green The road map utilizes process improvement tools that will be familiar to many organizations
