

Identifying the Mutation

Identify the following:

- Substitution mutation: the replacement of one amino acid by another without changing the overall structure of the protein. This can be caused by a single nucleotide change in the DNA sequence.
- Insertion mutation: the addition of one or more amino acids into the protein sequence.
- Deletion mutation: the removal of one or more amino acids from the protein sequence.
- Frameshift mutation: a mutation that shifts the reading frame of the protein sequence, causing all amino acids downstream to be changed.
- Point mutation: a mutation that changes a single nucleotide in the DNA sequence, which can result in a substitution, insertion, or deletion.
- Indel mutation: a mutation that involves the insertion or deletion of one or more nucleotides in the DNA sequence, which can result in a frameshift.
- Repeat expansion: a mutation that results in the repetition of a sequence of amino acids in the protein.
- Truncation: a mutation that results in the premature termination of the protein sequence, leading to a shorter protein.

Remember, and as a strategy that involves looking at the sequence of the protein, the original and mutant DNA sequences, and the amino acid sequence of the protein, you can identify the type of mutation that has occurred.
