Spanish Newsletter, 1964 Computational Linguistics and Intelligent Text Processing Alexander Gelbukh, 2004-02-03

CICLing 2004 was the 5th Annual Conference on Intelligent Text Processing and Computational Linguistics see www.CICLing.org CICLing conferences are intended to provide a balanced view of the cutting edge developments in both theoretical foundations of computational linguistics and the practice of natural language text processing with its numerous applications. A feature of CICLing conferences is their wide scope that covers nearly all areas of computational linguistics and all aspects of natural language processing applications. These conferences are a forum for dialogue between the specialists working in the two areas. This year we were honored by the presence of our invited speakers Martin Kay of Stanford University, Philip Resnik of the University of Maryland, Ricardo Baeza Yates of the University of Chile and Nick Campbell of the ATR Spoken Language Translation Research Laboratories. They delivered excellent extended lectures and organized vivid discussions. Of 129 submissions received, 74 full papers and 44 short papers, after careful international reviewing, 74 papers were selected for presentation: 40 full papers and 35 short papers written by 176 authors from 21 countries: Korea 37, Spain 34, Japan 22, Mexico 15, China 11, Germany 10, Ireland 10, UK 10, Singapore 6, Canada 3, Czech Rep 3, France 3, Brazil 2, Sweden 2, Taiwan 2, Turkey 2, USA 2, Chile 1, Romania 1, Thailand 1, and The Netherlands 1. The figures in parentheses stand for the number of authors from the corresponding country.

Lost and Found in Translation Martha J. Cutter, 2006-05-18. Starting with Salman Rushdie's assertion that even though something is always lost in translation, something can always be gained. Martha Cutter examines the trope of translation in twenty English language novels and autobiographies by contemporary ethnic American writers. She argues that these works advocate a politics of language diversity, a literary and social agenda that validates the multiplicity of ethnic cultures and tongues in the United States. Cutter studies works by Asian American, Native American, African American, and Mexican American authors. She argues that translation between cultures, languages, and dialects creates a new language that in its diversity constitutes the true heritage of the United States. Through the metaphor of translation, Cutter demonstrates writers such as Maxine Hong Kingston, Sherman Alexie, Toni Morrison, and Richard Rodriguez establish a place within American society for the many languages spoken by multiethnic and multicultural individuals. Cutter concludes with an analysis of contemporary debates over language policy, such as English only legislation, the recognition of Ebonics, and the growing acceptance of bilingualism. The focus on translation by so many multiethnic writers, she contends, offers hope in our postmodern culture for a new condition in which creatively fused languages renovate the communications of the dominant society and create new kinds of identity for multicultural individuals.

Technical Report Human Resources Research Organization, 1970 The Chicago

Guide to Writing about Multivariate Analysis, Second Edition Jane E. Miller, 2013-09-26 Many different people from social scientists to government agencies to business professionals depend on the results of multivariate models to inform their decisions. Researchers use these advanced statistical techniques to analyze relationships among multiple variables such as how exercise and weight relate to the risk of heart disease or how unemployment and interest rates affect economic growth. Yet despite the widespread need to plainly and effectively explain the results of multivariate analyses to varied audiences, few are properly taught this critical skill. The Chicago Guide to Writing about Multivariate Analysis is the book researchers turn to when looking for guidance on how to clearly present statistical results and break through the jargon that often clouds writing about applications of statistical analysis. This new edition features even more topics and real world examples, making it the must-have resource for anyone who needs to communicate complex research results. For this second edition, Jane E. Miller includes four new chapters that cover writing about interactions, writing about event history analysis, writing about multilevel models, and the Goldilocks principle for choosing the right size contrast for interpreting results for different variables. In addition, she has updated or added numerous examples while retaining her clear voice and focus on writers thinking critically about their intended audience and objective. Online podcasts, templates, and an updated study guide will help readers apply skills from the book to their own projects and courses. This continues to be the only book that brings together all of the steps involved in communicating findings based on multivariate analysis: finding data, creating variables, estimating statistical models, calculating overall effects, organizing ideas, designing tables and charts, and writing prose in a single volume. When aligned with Miller's twelve fundamental principles for quantitative writing, this approach will empower readers, whether students or experienced researchers, to communicate their findings clearly and effectively. Spanish 103
