Meet Clark!

Communication Is Key

Some clients feel anxious about giving vaccines to their dogs. It's important to talk to clients about the need for vaccines to protect their dogs from disease.

Vaccines also protect against diseases that can be passed from dogs to humans and are crucial for public health.

When the whole veterinary team is onboard with vaccine protocols, clients receive consistent messaging.

What's Core for This Dog?

Check out our vaccine calculator at aaha.org/canine-vaccinations.

Vaccinating Dogs in Shelters

Dogs in shelters are more likely to be exposed to infectious diseases, and vaccine protocols should reflect this enhanced risk.

See the 2022 AAHA Canine Vaccination Guidelines at aaha.org/canine-vaccinations for information on designing vaccine plans for shelter dogs.

3/2/1

3 Takeaways

All dogs should have the following core vaccines:

- Distemper
- Adenovirus
- Parvovirus
- +/- Parainfluenza (often included in combination vaccines)
- Rabies

Other vaccines are just as essential to an individual dog's health, depending on the dog's lifestyle and risk factors. These include:

- Leptospira (should be considered for most dogs based on increased prevalence)
- Lyme disease
- Bordetella
- Canine influenza
- Rattlesnake toxoid

Vaccination plans start with the required vaccines for all dogs, but you determine what additional vaccines are necessary for each of your patients.

The 2022 AAHA Canine Vaccination Guidelines empower you to make the best possible personalized vaccine recommendations for your patients based on their lifestyle and exposure risks.

2 Actions

For every dog, ask What's "core" for this patient?

Remember, core vaccines are required for all dogs, but other vaccines should also be considered "required" for certain dogs. Vaccine plans should be personalized and based on risk levels and good clinical judgment.

Train your team to talk to clients about vaccines and why they are a vital part of their dog's health plan.

1 Thing to Never Forget

When vaccines are overdue or unknown, consider that the benefits of vaccinating outweigh the risks in most cases. A good rule of thumb is: When in doubt, vaccinate.
