Clinician's Handbook of Adult Behavioral Assessment Michel Hersen,2006 Given the vast amount of research related to behavioral assessment it is difficult for clinicians to keep abreast of new developments In recent years there have been advances in assessment case conceptualization treatment planning treatment strategies for specific disorders and considerations of new ethical and legal issues Keeping track of advances requires monitoring diverse resources limited to specific disorders many of which are theoretical rather than practical or that offer clinical advice without providing the evidence base for treatment

Canadian Social Policy Anne Westhues,Brian Wharf,2012-05-25

Social policy shapes the daily lives of every Canadian citizen and should reflect the beliefs of a majority of Canadians on just approaches to the promotion of health safety and well being Too often those on the front lines social workers nurses and teachers observe that policies do not work well for the most vulnerable groups in society In the first part of this new edition of Canadian Social Policy Westhues and Wharf argue that service deliverers have discretion in how policies are implemented and the exercise of this discretion is how citizens experience policy whether or not it is fair and reasonable They show the reader how social policy is made and they encourage active citizenship to produce policies that are more socially just New material includes an examination of the reproduction of systemic racism through the implementation of human rights policy and a comparative analysis of the policy making process in Quebec and English Canada The second part of the book discusses policy issues currently under debate in Canada Included are new chapters that explore parental leave policies and housing as a determinant of health All chapters contain newly updated statistical data and research and policy analysis A reworked section on the process of policy making and the addition of questions for critical reflection enhance the suitability of the book as a core resource in social policy courses The final chapter explores how front line workers in the human services can advocate for change in organizational policies that will benefit the people supported

Water Governance, Policy and Knowledge Transfer Cheryl De Boer, Joanne Vinke-de Kruijf, Gül Özerol, Hans Th. A. Bressers, 2013-05-29 In an increasingly global community of researchers and practitioners new technologies and communication means have made the transfer of policies from one country or region to another progressively more prevalent There has been a lot of attention in the field of public administration paid to policy transfer and institutional transplantation This book aims to create a better understanding of such transfers in the water management sector These include the adoption of modern water management concepts such as integrated water resources management and forms of water governance which are strongly promoted and sometimes also imposed by various international organizations Transfers also occur within the scope of development aid or for the purpose of creating business opportunities In addition many research organisations consultancies and governmental agencies are involved in cross border work The purpose of this book is therefore to present practical examples of the transfer of modern water management from one locality to another and to critically discuss the transferability of policy and governance concepts by analysing the contextual needs and factors Case studies are included from North America Europe the Middle East and Asia It is argued that in many cases context matters in water management and that there is no panacea or universal concept that can be applied to all countries or regions with different political economic cultural and technological contexts Yet it is also shown that some countries are facing pressing and similar water management issues that cut across national borders and hence the transfer of knowledge may be beneficial
