The diagram illustrates two parallel data processing flows. On the left, the flow begins with 'Add records to the active population', followed by a 'Select all' operation, then a 'Filter out records' operation, and finally a 'Log out the active population' operation. On the right, the flow begins with 'Start', followed by a 'Select all' operation, then a 'Filter out records' operation, and finally a 'Log out the active population' operation. Both flows involve a large central data structure represented by a vertical rectangle.
