Pasque,e alexander,2022-08-19 Advancing Culturally Responsive Research and Researchers Qualitative Quantitative and Mixed Methods encourages readers to design and engage in methodologies and methods that place cultural relevancy at the center of inquiry In doing so it highlights the need to uplift voices and needs of people who have been historically marginalized in the environments that we both inhabit and engage in as part of knowledge construction The scholars whose work is featured in this volume take up research from different paradigmatic ontological epistemological axiological and methodological approaches yet with adherence to centering cultural responsiveness in all research decisions Each chapter seeks to extend understandings of social inequities methodologies and or methods and to contribute to meaningful and evolving social change through innovative and cutting edge research strategies While doing this work the authors illustrate and highlight the importance of researcher positions and reflexivity in supporting the expansion of culturally responsive approaches they also do so while considering global sociopolitical conditions of this moment in time The contributions to this volume were initially presented at the first biennial Advanced Methods Institute in 2021 The Institute was hosted by QualLab in The Ohio State University s College of Education and Human Ecology and shared this volume s thematic focus As a handbook the volume can help faculty and advanced researchers with interest in doing culturally responsive projects to better understand frameworks approaches and considerations for doing so It includes activities to support readers in developing said understandings

Semantics and Pragmatics: Drawing a Line Ilse

Depraetere,Raphael Salkie,2017-03-16 This book explores new territory at the interface between semantics and pragmatics reassessing a number of linguistic phenomena in the light of recent advances in pragmatic theory It presents stimulating insights by experts in linguistics and philosophy including Kent Bach Philippe de Brabanter Max K lbel and Fran ois Recanati The authors begin by reassessing the definition of four theoretical concepts saturation free pragmatic enrichment completion and expansion They go on to confront sub disciplines that have addressed similar issues but that have not necessarily been in close contact and then turn to questions related to reported speech modality indirect requests and prosody Chapters investigate lexical pragmatics and cognitive lexical semantics and other interactions involving experimental pragmatics construction grammar clinical linguistics and the distinction between mental and linguistic content The authors bridge the gap between different disciplines subdisciplines and methodologies supporting cross fertilization of ideas and indicating the empirical studies that are needed to test current theoretical concepts and push the theory further Readers will find overviews of the ways in which concepts are defined empirical data with which they are illustrated and explorations of the theoretical frameworks in which concepts are couched This exciting exchange of ideas has its origins in the editors workshop series on the theme The semantics pragmatics interface linguistic logical and philosophical perspectives held at the University of Lille 3 in 2012 13 Scholars of linguistics logic and philosophy and those interested in the research benefits of crossing disciplines will find this work both accessible and thought provoking especially those with an interest in pragmatic theory or semantics

Modeling Individual Differences in Perceptual Decision Making Joseph W. Houpt,Cheng-Ta Yang,James T.

Townsend,2017-01-18 To deal with the abundant amount of information in the environment in order to achieve our goals human beings adopt a strategy to accumulate some information and filter out other information to ultimately make decisions

Since the development of cognitive science in the 1960s researchers have been interested in understanding how human beings process and accumulate information for decision making. Researchers have conducted extensive behavioral studies and applied a wide range of modeling tools to study human behavior in simple detection tasks and two choice decision tasks e.g. discrimination classification. In general, researchers often assume that the manner in which information is processed for decision making is invariant across individuals given a particular experimental context. Independent variables including speed, accuracy, instructions, stimulus properties i.e. intensity and characteristics of the participants i.e. aging, cognitive ability are assumed to affect the parameters in a model i.e. speed of information accumulation, response bias but not the way that participants process information e.g. the order of information processing. Given these assumptions, much modeling has been accomplished based on the grouped data rather than the individual data. However, a growing number of studies have demonstrated that there were individual differences in the perceptual decision process. In the same task context, different groups of the participants may process information in different manners. The capacity and architecture of the decision mechanism were found to vary across individuals, implying that humans' decision strategies can vary depending on the context to maximize their performance. In this special issue, we focused on a particular subset of cognitive models, particularly accumulator models, multinomial processing trees, and systems factorial technology (SFT) as applied to perceptual decision making. The motivation for the focus on perceptual decision making is threefold. Empirical studies of perception have grown out of a history of making a large number of observations for each individual so as to achieve precise estimates of each individual's performance. This type of data rather than a small number of observations per individual is most amenable to achieving precision in individual level and group level cognitive modeling. Second, the interaction between the acquisition of perceptual information and the decisions based on that information to the extent that those processes are distinguishable offers rich data for scientific exploration. Finally, there is an increasing interest in the practical application of individual variation in perceptual ability, whether to inform perceptual training and expertise or to guide personnel decisions. Although these practical applications are beyond the scope of this issue, we hope that the research presented herein may serve as the foundation for future endeavors in that domain.

Hayek: A Collaborative Biography Robert Leeson, 2019-08-05. This book is the eighth volume in this Collaborative Biography which explores the life and works of Nobel Prize winning economist F. A. Hayek (1889-1992). Making extensive use of archival material and Hayek's own published writings, it presents a strong challenge to perceptions of the economist's life and thought. In this volume, chapters canvas subjects such as the relationship between the Austrian School of Economics and the Cold War, the Hapsburg Empire and the overthrow or planned overthrow of democracy in a variety of countries, with a view to examining the process by which economics is constructed and disseminated.

Liberalism in Illiberal States Mark I. Vail, 2018 After the end of the Cold War liberalism emerged as the world's dominant political economic ideology and economic liberalism seemed to have achieved global hegemony In Liberalism in Illiberal States Mark Vail acknowledges the dominance of economic liberalism but argues that its implementation in specific countries is always unique and dependent upon powerful historical factors He focuses on France Germany and Italy countries that many scholars do not view as liberal at all and contends they have in fact developed distinct forms of national liberalism of which their postwar models of capitalism were merely one manifestation Vail argues that these states political economies have been shaped by centuries old liberal traditions which have continued to inform national alternatives to transnational neoliberalism in the contemporary era He presents case studies that show how nationally specific interpretations of liberalism are flexible and responsive to local realities especially in times of economic uncertainty By demonstrating how variegated the practice of economic liberalism actually is Liberalism in Illiberal States will reshape our understanding of liberal political economy in the contemporary world

Resisting Garbage Lily Baum Pollans, 2021-11-02 Resisting Garbage presents a new approach to understanding practices of waste removal and recycling in American cities one that is grounded in the close observation of case studies while being broadly applicable to many American cities today Most current waste practices in the United States Lily Baum Pollans argues prioritize sanitation and efficiency while allowing limited post consumer recycling as a way to quell consumers environmental anxiety After setting out the contours of this weak recycling waste regime Pollans zooms in on the very different waste management stories of Seattle and Boston over the last forty years While Boston's local politics resulted in a waste export program with minimal recycling Seattle created new frameworks for thinking about consumption disposal and the roles that local governments and ordinary people can play as partners in a project of resource stewardship By exploring how these two approaches have played out at the national level Resisting Garbage provides new avenues for evaluating municipal action and fostering practices that will create environmentally meaningful change
