

Alien Encounters

Background: In their year 2000, scientists at the SETI Institute and the University of California, Berkeley, announced that they had discovered a signal from an alien civilization. The signal was a series of pulses that appeared to be coming from a star system about 150 light years away. The signal was detected by the SETI@home project, which is a distributed computing project that uses volunteers' computers to search for signals from alien civilizations. The signal was detected on August 15, 2000, and was named "Wow!" because of its strength and clarity. The signal was detected by a radio telescope at the SETI Institute's Big Ear radio telescope in Ohio. The signal was a series of pulses that appeared to be coming from a star system about 150 light years away. The signal was detected by the SETI@home project, which is a distributed computing project that uses volunteers' computers to search for signals from alien civilizations.

Assignment: Write a story about the alien encounter. Use the information you have learned about the signal and the SETI@home project to create a believable story. Your story should include the following elements: the location of the signal, the date and time of the encounter, the appearance of the alien, the actions of the alien, and the reactions of the humans involved. Your story should be written in a clear, concise, and engaging style. Use your imagination to create a story that is both scientifically plausible and entertaining.

Think About It!

What questions do you have about the signal and the SETI@home project?

After you complete this assignment...

Assignment Questions:

1. What does a signal strength of 100 mean? How does this compare to a signal strength of 1?

Answer: A signal strength of 100 means that the signal is 100 times stronger than a signal with a strength of 1. This is a very strong signal, especially for a signal that is coming from a star system 150 light years away.

2. If you were a particular alien race, what would you think about the signal? Would you be curious, excited, or scared? Why?

Answer: If I were an alien race, I would be very curious about the signal. I would want to know where it was coming from and what it was for. I would also be excited to see if I could find other signals from other alien civilizations.

3. What is the biggest question you have about the signal?

Answer: The biggest question I have about the signal is whether or not it was really from an alien civilization. There are many other explanations for the signal, such as a natural radio signal or a signal from a human-made source.

What are the chances that the signal was from an alien civilization?

Answer: The chances are very small. There are many other explanations for the signal, and the SETI@home project has not yet found any other signals from alien civilizations.

What are the chances that the signal was from a human-made source?

Answer: The chances are very small. There are many other explanations for the signal, and the SETI@home project has not yet found any other signals from human-made sources.

What are the chances that the signal was from a natural radio source?
