Labor of Innocents Karin Lorene Zipf, 2005-05-01 On an autumn day in 1866 Wiley Ambrose and Hepsey Saunders two former slaves who lived as husband and wife received a knock at their door Three men from a plantation in Brunswick County North Carolina presented court ordered apprenticeship papers authorizing the immediate seizure of the couple's daughters fifteen year old Harriet and thirteen year old Eliza After a brief stay in jail with other children the sisters were sent to work as plantation servants and field hands until age twenty one With that startling example Karin L Zipf begins Labor of Innocents the first comprehensive exploration of forced apprenticeship in North Carolina Zipf refuses to nostalgically view apprenticeship as a benign form of vocational training for children and instead presents irrefutable evidence that the institution existed as a means to control the composition and character of families to provide alternate sources of cheap labor and to ensure a white patriarchal social order Codified by law involuntary apprenticeship allowed courts not only to define who was an unacceptable parent but also to indenture their children Disproportionately affected were the poor Zipf details the continual fluidity of the institution from its colonial origins to its twentieth century demise Over two hundred years the definition of an unfit head of household variously included black men any woman and widowed or unmarried white women depending upon the current social and political agenda of authorities

Parents of both races and sexes challenged the laws vigorously and repeatedly to no effect until progressive reforms ended apprenticeship in 1919 with passage of the Child Welfare Act An impressive blend of legal social and labor history Labor of Innocents illuminates past concepts of family and the realities families endured The Mother's Assistant, and Child's Friend, 1846 Office Administration for Organizations Supervising the Health of Mothers, Infants, and Children of Preschool Age Estelle Belle Hunter, Helen Rankin Jeter, Helen Russell Wright, Lydia Jane Roberts, United States. Mothers Who Kill Charlotte Beyer, 2022-01-10 This compelling and unique collection of critical and creative work assesses for the first time cultural literary legal and historical representations and narratives about mothers who kill and filicide The idea of a mother killing her child to many presents the greatest taboo and the most disturbing and distressing aspect of maternal experience In Toni Morrison's 1987 novel Beloved escaped slave mother Sethe addresses her daughter Beloved whom she murdered out of desperation in order to avoid her returning to a life of slavery and sexual abuse Sethe reflects I'll explain to her even though I don't have to Why I did it How if I hadn't killed her she would have died and that is something I could not bear to happen to her When I explain it she'll understand This book goes beyond Morrison's widely known literary portrayal in order to investigate a range of other less known but no less challenging examinations of maternal filicide Have mothers who kill inevitably been portrayed as monsters in cultural representations Or are there certain contexts that may urge us to reevaluate maternal behavior And how might we counter the misogynist narratives surrounding maternal filicide which have governed literary and historical accounts and affected legal discourses This wide ranging and innovative volume examines the complex issues of infanticide and mothers who kill from a broad interdisciplinary perspective in order to counter the misogynist cultural narratives that underpin prevailing stereotypes of mothers The book includes creative work essays on crime fiction literature from across a range of historical periods multicultural and Global South perspectives legal and historical accounts and more Making an invaluable contribution to motherhood studies and gender criticism this book offers a rich insight into current and cutting edge research into this most troubling area of maternal representation
