

6 AP Language & Composition Argument and “Surprise” Essay Prompts and Tips on How to Write Them

1. Argument Prompt

Read carefully the following quotation from Michael de Montaigne. Then write a carefully reasoned persuasive essay that either defends, challenges or qualifies Montaigne’s position. Use evidence from your own observation, experience, or reading to develop your position.

Nothing is harder for me than to believe in men’s consistency; nothing is easier to believe in than their inconsistency.

Tip: The AP readers will usually give a well written essay a higher score, if the thesis and essay are qualified. This is because it often shows a higher level of critical thinking. To qualify an argument means to agree with a part of it. An easy way to write a qualifying thesis is to use a thesis that is developed in 2 or 3 sentences or to use a complex sentence.

Examples: Numerous examples of man’s inconstancy are easy to identify in parents to world leaders. However, Montaigne’s cynicism discounts the many times man has risen to consistency in qualities such as persistence in intellectual curiosity and adherence to moral beliefs. These consistencies cannot be ignored because they constitute some of his greatest hours.

While it cannot be denied that man is a creature of inconsistency in general, the times of his most important consistencies have marked his finest achievements.
