108 Structure of the Mammalian Heart

Key ideas: Mammals have a four-chambered heart, divided into left and right halves, and acting as a double pump. The heart is the centre of the human circulatory system. It is a hollow, muscular organ made up of four chambers (two atria and two ventricles) that alternately fill and empty of blood, acting as a double pump. The left side pumps the oxygenated blood to the rest of the body, and the right side pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs. The heart has a double-layered pericardium of connective tissue, which prevents over-distension of the heart and anchors it within the mediastinal compartment of the thoracic cavity.

Human heart structure (simplified, anterior view)

Arrows indicate integrated blood in the heart and body.

Heart is divided into four chambers: the right and left atria and ventricles. The right atrium receives deoxygenated blood from the body, and the right ventricle pumps it to the lungs. The left atrium receives oxygenated blood from the lungs, and the left ventricle pumps it to the body.

The heart is not a spherical organ. Although the quantity of blood pumped by each side is the same, the walls of the two ventricles are divided in shape as the result of their function. The left ventricle is thicker-walled than the right, as it has to pump blood a longer distance to the rest of the body.

Right atrium: receives deoxygenated blood in the anterior and posterior vena cavae.
Right ventricle: pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs via the pulmonary artery.
Left atrium: receives oxygenated blood returning to the heart from the lungs via the pulmonary veins.
Left ventricle: pumps oxygenated blood to the body and lungs via the aorta.

Superior view of heart to show coronary circulation

Coronary circulation: The heart muscle itself has a blood supply network. Coronary arteries carry blood from the aorta to the heart muscle, while coronary veins carry deoxygenated blood from the heart muscle back to the right atrium. The a large coronary sinus is formed by the union of several coronary veins.

1. In the schematic diagram of the heart below, label the four chambers and the main vessels entering and leaving them. Then complete the diagram of blood flow. Use large coloured circles to mark the direction of flow of the blood.
