Anthropologies Of Cancer In Transnational Worlds Routledge Studies In Anthropology:

Anthropologies of Cancer in Transnational Worlds Holly F. Mathews, Nancy J. Burke, Eirini Kampriani, 2015-06-26
Cancer is a transnational condition involving the unprecedented flow of health information technologies and people across national borders. Such movement raises questions about the nature of therapeutic citizenship: how and where structurally vulnerable populations obtain care and the political geography of blame associated with this disease. This volume brings together cutting edge anthropological research carried out across North and South America, Europe, Africa, and Asia, representing low, middle, and high resource countries with a diversity of national health care systems. Contributors ethnographically map the varied nature of cancer experiences and articulate the multiplicity of meanings that survivorship, risk, charity, and care entail. They explore institutional frameworks shaping local responses to cancer and underlying political forces and structural variables. Chapter 3 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 3.0 license: https://s3.us-west-2.amazonaws.com/tandfbis-rt-files/docs/Open+Access+Chapters/9781138776937_oachapter3.pdf Negotiating Structural Vulnerability in Cancer Control Julie Armin, Nancy J. Burke, Eichelberger Laura, 2019-03-01
What can case studies about the lived experiences of cancer contribute to an interest in the concept of structural vulnerability? And can a consideration of structural vulnerability enhance applied anthropological work in cancer prevention and control? To answer these questions, the contributors in this volume explore what it means to be structurally vulnerable, how structural vulnerabilities intersect with cancer risk, diagnosis, care seeking, caregiving, clinical trial participation, and survivorship, and how differing local, national, and global political contexts and histories inform vulnerability. These case studies illustrate how quotidian experiences of structural vulnerability influence and are altered by a cancer diagnosis at various points in the continuum of care. In examining cancer as a set of diseases and biosocial phenomena, the contributors extend structural vulnerability beyond its original conceptualization to encompass spatiality, temporality, and biosocial shifts in both individual and institutional arrangements. Cancer and the Politics of Care Linda Rae Bennett, Lenore Manderson, Belinda Spagnoletti, 2023-02-13
This timely volume responds to the epic impacts of cancer as a global phenomenon. Through the fine-grained lens of ethnography, the contributors present new thinking on how social, economic, race, gender, and other structural inequalities intersect, compound, and complicate health inequalities. Cancer experiences and impacts are explored across eleven countries: Argentina, Brazil, Denmark, France, Greece, India, Indonesia, Italy, Senegal, the United Kingdom, and the United States. The volume engages with specific cancers from the point of primary prevention to screening, diagnosis, treatment, or its absence, and end-of-life care. Cancer and the Politics of Care traverses new theoretical terrain through explicitly critiquing cancer interventions, their limitations, and success; the politics that drive them; and their embeddedness in local cultures and value systems. It extends prior work on cancer by incorporating the perspectives of patients and their families, at-risk groups and communities, health professionals, cancer advocates, and educators and patient navigators The volume advances cross cultural understandings of care resisting simple dichotomies between caregiving and receiving and reveals the fraught ethics of care that must be negotiated in resource poor settings and stratified health systems Its diversity and innovation ensures its wide utility among those working in and studying medical anthropology social anthropology and other fields at the intersections of social science medicine and health equity

Cancer Entangled Rikke Sand Andersen, Marie Louise Tørring, 2023-04-14 This book explores the shifts that took place in Denmark around the millennium when health promoters set out to minimize delays in cancer diagnoses in hope of improving cancer survival Through rich ethnographic cases on the first cancer vaccine cancer signs and symptoms social class and care seeking public discourses on delays cancer suspicion in the clinic and fast track referral the authors situate cancer control in an ethical registrar involving attention to acceleration and time

The Politics of Knowledge in the Biomedical Sciences Jonathan Jansen, Jess Auerbach, 2023-11-06 In the wake of the decolonization movement in South Africa and around the world this edited work presents fresh evidence and advances new arguments on the politics and economics of colonial biomedical knowledge in South Africa and other parts of the African continent Covering a richly diverse set of fields including human genetics obstetrics occupational therapy medical photography and the vaccine sciences the book demonstrates the troubled histories and the enduring effects of imperial knowledge decades since the end of colonial rule and apartheid This is a valuable text on the politics of the biomedical sciences written from the perspective of the African continent and at the same time it revisits knowledge power relationships between the majority global South and minority global north words in a historical perspective and in their contemporary expression in the disciplines The immediate benefit is a reference resource for medical science researchers and a teaching text for senior undergraduate and postgraduate students The book is further composed as an accessible readable and interesting text on politics and medicine in Africa for the discerning lay reader

The Anthropology of Postindustrialism Ismael Vaccaro,Krista Harper,Seth Murray,2015-10-08 This volume explores how mechanisms of postindustrial capitalism affect places and people in peripheral regions and de industrializing cities While studies of globalization tend to emphasize localities newly connected to global systems this collection in contrast analyzes the disconnection of communities away from the market presenting a range of ethnographic case studies that scrutinize the framework of this transformative process analyzing new social formations that are emerging in the voids left behind by the de industrialization and introducing a discussion on the potential impacts of the current economic and ecological crises on the hyper mobile model that has characterized this recent phase of global capitalism and spatially uneven development A Companion to Medical Anthropology Merrill Singer,Pamela I. Erickson,César E. Abadía-Barrero,2022-03-01 The fully revised new edition of the defining reference work in the field of medical anthropology A Companion to Medical Anthropology Second Edition provides the most complete account of the key issues and debates in this dynamic rapidly growing field. Bringing together contributions by leading international authorities in medical anthropology, this comprehensive reference work presents critical assessments and interpretations of a wide range of topical themes including global and environmental health, political violence and war, poverty, malnutrition, substance abuse, reproductive health and infectious diseases. Throughout the text, readers explore the global historical and political factors that continue to influence how health and illness are experienced and understood. The second edition is fully updated to reflect current controversies and significant new developments in the anthropology of health and related fields. More than twenty new and revised articles address research areas including war and health, illicit drug abuse, climate change and health, colonialism and modern biomedicine, activist-led research, syndemics, ethnomedicines, biocommunicability, COVID-19 and many others. Highlighting the impact medical anthropologists have on global health care policy and practice, A Companion to Medical Anthropology Second Edition features specially commissioned articles by medical anthropologists working in communities worldwide. Discusses future trends and emerging research areas in the field. Describes biocultural approaches to health and illness and research design and methods in applied medical anthropology. Addresses topics including chronic diseases, rising levels of inequality, war and health, migration and health, nutritional health, self-medication and end-of-life care. Part of the acclaimed Wiley Blackwell Companions to Anthropology series, A Companion to Medical Anthropology Second Edition remains an indispensable resource for medical anthropologists as well as an excellent textbook for courses in medical anthropology, ethnomedicine, global health care and medical policy.
