Colour and Light in the Ocean Victor Martinez-Vicente, Astrid Bracher, Didier Ramon, Shubha Sathyendranath, Tiit Kutser, 2020-03-26 CLEO publications in Frontiers in Marine Science Foreword Josef Aschbacher Director of ESA s Earth Observation Programmes Satellite data have drastically changed the view we have of the oceans Covering about 70% of Earth s surface oceans play a unique role for our planet and for our life but large areas remain unexplored and are difficult to reach Since the 1980s Earth orbiting satellites have helped to observe what is happening at the ocean surface Sensors like CZCS AVHRR SeaWiFS and MODIS provided the first ocean colour data from space Starting in 2002 ESA s Medium Resolution Imaging Spectrometer MERIS on board the environmental satellite Envisat provided detailed information on phytoplankton biomass and concentrations of other matter in the global oceans These satellite observations laid the groundwork for studying the marine environment and how it responds to climate change and the research community has since delivered information on the variability of marine ecosystems Part of this work is reflected in this stunning collection of peer reviewed publications presented at the workshop Colour and Light in the Ocean from Earth Observation CLEO held at ESA s ESRIN site in Frascati Italy on 6 8 September 2016 The event attracted more than 160 participants from all over the world including remote sensing experts marine ecosystem modelers in situ observers and users of Earth observation data Scientifically the meeting covered applications in climate studies over primary productivity and ocean dynamics to pools of carbon and phytoplankton diversity at global and regional scales It also demonstrated the potential of Earth observation and its contribution to modern oceanography Looking to the future new satellites developed by ESA under the coordination of the European Commission will further our scientific and operational observations of the seas With Sentinel 3A in orbit and its twin Sentinel 3B following in 2017 there is a new category of data available for operational oceanographic applications and climate studies for years to come These data are free and easy to access by anyone interested Looking at the role of oceans in our daily lives I am sure that this collection of scientific excellence will be valued by scientists of today and will inspire the next generation to carry these ideas into the future

Rapidly Changing Polar Environments Julie Dinasquet,Eva Ortega-Retuerta,Connie Lovejoy,Ingrid

Obernosterer,2018-07-05 Marine and freshwater polar environments are characterized by intense physical forces and strong seasonal variations The persistent cold and sometimes inhospitable conditions create unique ecosystems and habitats for microbial life Polar microbial communities are diverse productive assemblages which drive biogeochemical cycles and support higher food webs across the Arctic and over much of the Antarctic Recent studies on the biogeography of microbial species have revealed phylogenetically diverse polar ecotypes suggesting adaptation to seasonal darkness sea ice coverage and high summer irradiance Because of the diversity of habitats related to atmospheric and oceanic circulation and the formation and melting of ice high latitude oceans and lakes are ideal environments to investigate composition and functionality of microbial communities In addition polar regions are responding more dramatically to climate change compared to temperate environments and there is an urgent need to identify sensitive indicators of ecosystem history that may be sentinels for change or adaptation For instance Antarctic lakes provide useful model systems to study microbial evolution and climate history Hence it becomes essential and timely to better understand factors controlling the microbes and how in turn they may affect the functioning of these fragile ecosystems Polar microbiology is an expanding field of research with exciting possibilities to provide new insights into microbial ecology and evolution With this Research Topic we seek to bring together polar microbiologists studying different aquatic systems and components of the microbial food web to stimulate discussion and reflect on these sensitive environments in a changing world perspective Activist Leadership for Inclusive Schools Zuhra Abawi,Ardavan Eizadirad,Stephanie Tuters,Andrew B. Campbell,2025-03-13 Activist Leadership for Inclusive Schools explores courageous methods for educational leadership and principalship in Canada to move beyond additive discourses of diversity to dismantling systems of oppression for thriving schools and communities It is a timely collection rooted in diverse approaches to activism that names disrupts and challenges dominant leadership discourses and practices that perpetuate harm to underserved communities Throughout Canada educational policies and mandates are often implemented without meaningful collaboration with the students families and communities they are intended to serve thereby exacerbating systemic structural and institutional barriers The collection s social justice approach to activism and leadership bridges gaps between policies institutions and communities It calls for a more just education system that carves out spaces of belonging by honouring the lived experiences identities and intersectionalities of all students This book is an invaluable resource for Canadian university education programs with courses focusing on educational leadership diversity social justice or inclusive education It also serves educational administration existing teachers principals higher education instructors and researchers policy makers and activists
