

The Digestive System

What is the digestive system?

The digestive system, or gastrointestinal tract, is a tract of organs that is responsible for digesting and absorbing nutrients from food. Food is broken down mechanically in the mouth, is digested through a series of chemical reactions, and absorbed into the bloodstream. The nutrients are then used by the body for energy and growth. The digestive system also plays a role in the elimination of waste from the body.

Liver, pancreas & gallbladder

After leaving the stomach, chyme moves into the duodenum, the first part of the small intestine, where it is mixed with bile secreted by the liver and pancreatic juice secreted by the pancreas. This area is a mixing region on the intestine where the duodenum opens into the descending large intestine. The liver and pancreas are located in the upper right abdomen, just below the diaphragm.

Layers of large intestine

Large intestine

The large intestine consists of the cecum, the appendix, the ascending colon, the transverse colon, the descending colon, the sigmoid colon, and the rectum. The large intestine is responsible for absorbing water and electrolytes from the undigested food, forming the feces.

Peristaltic action

Food material is pushed through the digestive system by a series of powerful muscular contractions called peristalsis. These contractions move the food forward and mix it with digestive juices, which are secreted by the stomach.

The mouth & salivary glands

Chewing the food breaks it into smaller pieces, making it easier to swallow. Saliva, secreted by the salivary glands, moistens the food and helps in the digestion of carbohydrates. The salivary glands are located in the mouth and throat.

The stomach

The stomach is a large, muscular organ that is responsible for the digestion of food. It is located in the upper left abdomen. The stomach wall is composed of several layers of muscle, which contract to mix the food with gastric juices.

Small intestine

The small intestine is a long, coiled tube that is responsible for the digestion of food. It is located in the upper right abdomen. The small intestine is divided into three parts: the duodenum, the jejunum, and the ileum.

Absorption

The nutrients from the food are absorbed into the bloodstream through the walls of the small intestine. The absorption of nutrients is a complex process that involves the transport of nutrients across the intestinal wall.
