Life and Campaigns of Lieut.-Gen. Thomas J. Jackson, (Stonewall Jackson) Robert Lewis Dabney, 1866      A Land Reborn: The Path To Justice and Peace Dr. Heybatollah Najandimanesh, This book written by Dr Heybatollah Najandimanesh is more than just a novel it is a powerful testament to the struggles of those living under occupation and ongoing conflicts particularly in Afghanistan and Palestine. Through a blend of real experiences and fictional elements the author highlights the pain, resilience and unwavering hope of people who have lost everything to war. The narrative serves as a call for justice and peace, urging readers to reflect on the human cost of conflict and the moral responsibility to advocate for change. At the heart of the story is Ali, a Palestinian orphan whose parents are killed in an airstrike. Instead of succumbing to despair, Ali transforms into a symbol of resistance and justice, embodying the voice of countless children robbed of their childhood by war. The novel traces his journey from loss and grief to empowerment, showing how suffering can fuel the fight for a better future. The book also critiques the failure of international institutions to protect innocent civilians and emphasizes the need for collective action. Beyond a personal story, A Land Reborn raises profound questions about international justice, human rights and the role of global organizations in preventing atrocities. It challenges readers not to be passive observers but to actively engage in efforts toward a more just and humane world. This is not just a book about pain; it is a story of hope, resilience and the enduring human spirit that refuses to be broken.

Scarcely remembered in England today, the War of 1812 stood as a veritable second war of independence to the victorious Americans and ushered in an extended period of peaceful relations and trade between the United States and Britain.
