

Organization of a Research Paper:

Introduction

A good introduction is relatively short. It tells why the reader should find the paper interesting, explains why the author carried out the research, and gives the background the reader needs to understand and judge the paper.

Specifically, the Introduction defines the nature and extent of the problems studied, relates the research to previous work (usually by a brief review of the literature clearly relevant to the problem), explains the objectives of investigation, and defines any specialized terms or abbreviations to be used in what follows. Remember that the Introduction leads logically to, and clearly states, the hypothesis or principal theme of the paper.

The Introduction should be relatively brief; most journals recommend less than 500 words. Avoid repetition: do not repeat the Abstract in the Introduction (and Introduction in the Discussion). Do not go into an extensive literature review; two to four most relevant and recent citations should be adequate to corroborate a statement. Do not repeat well-known facts nor state the obvious. For example, it is disappointing that even now, i.e., after more than 30 years of concerted efforts in scientific agroforestry and a large volume of literature in the subject, some manuscripts—and, interestingly, some editors—insist on providing a definition of agroforestry in any article on that subject! The Introduction section also may use different tenses: justification and motivation of the study is presented in present tense ("Soils store relatively large amounts of carbon in terrestrial ecosystems."), whereas the review of literature is presented in past tense ("Studies showed that ..."), or in present perfect tense if it is common knowledge ("Studies have shown that ..."). The objective is written in past tense ("The objective of the current study was ..."). Different journals follow different norms and styles. Some want discussion of literature in the Introduction while some want it in the Discussion section. Some journals require a brief account of the Materials and Methods to be included in the Introduction section, and some may want even the important conclusions presented in the Introduction section, although that tendency is now disappearing.

Turabian, 2009-08-14 Dewey Bellow Strauss Friedman The University of Chicago has been the home of some of the most important thinkers of the modern age But perhaps no name has been spoken with more respect than Turabian The dissertation secretary at Chicago for decades Kate Turabian literally wrote the book on the successful completion and submission of the student paper Her Manual for Writers of Research Papers Theses and Dissertations created from her years of experience with research projects across all fields has sold more than seven million copies since it was first published in 1937 Now with this seventh edition Turabian's Manual has undergone its most extensive revision ensuring that it will remain the most valuable handbook for writers at every level from first year undergraduates to dissertation writers apprehensively submitting final manuscripts to senior scholars who may be old hands at research and writing but less familiar with new media citation styles Gregory G Colomb Joseph M Williams and the late Wayne C Booth the gifted team behind The Craft of Research and the University of Chicago Press Editorial Staff combined their wide ranging expertise to remake this classic resource They preserve Turabian's clear and practical advice while fully embracing the new modes of research writing and source citation brought about by the age of the Internet Booth Colomb and Williams significantly expand the scope of previous editions by creating a guide generous in length and tone to the art of research and writing Growing out of the authors best selling Craft of Research this new section provides students with an overview of every step of the research and writing process from formulating the right questions to reading critically to building arguments and revising drafts This leads naturally to the second part of the Manual for Writers which offers an authoritative overview of citation practices in scholarly writing as well as detailed information on the two main citation styles notes bibliography and author date This section has been fully revised to reflect the recommendations of the fifteenth edition of The Chicago Manual of Style and to present an expanded array of source types and updated examples including guidance on citing electronic sources The final section of the book treats issues of style the details that go into making a strong paper Here writers will find advice on a wide range of topics including punctuation table formatting and use of quotations The appendix draws together everything writers need to know about formatting research papers theses and dissertations and preparing them for submission This material has been thoroughly vetted by dissertation officials at colleges and universities across the country This seventh edition of Turabian's Manual for Writers of Research Papers Theses and Dissertations is a classic reference revised for a new age It is tailored to a new generation of writers using tools its original author could not have imagined while retaining the clarity and authority that generations of scholars have come to associate with the name Turabian

Writing Human Factors Research Papers Don Harris, 2016-12-05 Writing high quality papers suitable for publication within international scientific journals is now an essential skill for all early career researchers their career progression and the reputation of the department in which they work depends upon it However many manuscripts are rejected or sent back for major re working not because the science they contain is in any way bad but because the same problems keep occurring in the way that the material is presented It is one thing to write a good scientific paper however it is quite another thing to get it published This requires some additional nous In writing this book Don Harris draws upon nearly a quarter of a century of experience as an author and reviewer of research papers and ultimately as a journal editor By his own admission it contains all the things he wished that his mentors had told him 25 years ago but didn't The material in the book is drawn from many years of finding all these things out for himself usually by trial and error but mostly error The text adopts a much lighter touch than is normally found in books of this type after all who really wants to read a book about writing research papers The author describes his own unique approach to writing journal papers which in his own words has proved to be extremely successful All major points are illustrated with examples from his own published works The book is written in the form of a manual for constructing a journal manuscript read a chapter write a section However the material it contains goes beyond just this and also describes how to select a target journal the manuscript submission process what referees are looking for in a good journal paper and how to deal with the referees comments Each chapter concludes with a checklist to ensure all the key elements have been addressed
