Selecting games that are aligned to curricular goals by considering the genres of historical games. Planning and implementing game-based history lessons ranging from whole class exercises to individual gameplay to analysis in groups. Employing instructional strategies to help students learn to play and engage in higher level analysis. Identifying and avoiding common pitfalls when incorporating games into the history class. Developing activities and assessments that facilitate interpreting and creating established and new media. Gaming the Past also includes sample unit and lesson plans, worksheets, and assessment questions, and a list of historical games currently available, both commercial and freely available Internet games.

Making Sense in History Andrew Szanajda, 2007. Making Sense in History provides a guide for history students and teachers. This work provides descriptions and analysis of several approaches for writing history. While the focus is on how history has been written, the methods that are researched in the book are suitable as a reference work for college level history students and teachers. It provides an overview of how research has been undertaken and how authors throughout history have written history. Most works of this type deal with either the philosophy of history methodology for writing history or historiography. This work combines Qualitative Research Stephen D. Lapan, MaryLynn T. Quartaroli, Frances J. Riemer, 2011-11-09. The authors noted scholars and researchers provide an up to date guide to qualitative study design, data collection, analysis, and reporting. Step by step the authors explain a range of methodologies and methods for conducting qualitative research, focusing on how they are applied when conducting an actual study. The book includes methods of data collection, specific approaches to qualitative research, and current issues in the field. Specifically, chapters cover the methods, designs, and analyses related to the methodologies of history case study, program evaluation, ethnography, autoethnography, narrative, life histories, emancipatory discourses, feminist perspectives, African American inquiry, indigenous studies, and practitioner qualitative research.

Writing to Make an Impact Sandra Murphy, Mary Ann Smith, 2020. Through ideas and practices straight from the classrooms of outstanding teachers, this lively resource illustrates writing that makes an impact on a reader, a writer, or a cause—writing that everyone wants to read. The book is rich with student work that shows how writing can make things happen in the world. The authors provide ready-to-use lessons that include a full range of writing, including poetry, narrative, petitions, proposals, emails, self-reflections, long-term projects, and critical analyses. Young people yearn to have an impact on the world but often lack the tools to make change. This book demonstrates how shifting the focus and purposes for writing can turn students' frustration with the status quo into action. There's no time to waste. The need for change, both in school and in society, is urgent. Carol Jago, past president, National Council of Teachers of English and associate director, California Reading and Literature Project at UCLA. In true National

Writing Project style Sandy Murphy and Mary Ann Smith take us inside the classrooms of remarkable teachers to see how they create contexts for young writers to pursue writing they care about for purposes that matter Readers will find lots to take back to their own settings to engage this remarkable generation of young people in our classrooms Elyse Eidman Aadahl
Executive Director National Writing Project
