

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN THE HEART STOPS BEATING?

Without a heartbeat, the blood can't flow to the organs of the body, including the brain and the muscle of the heart.

When a person doesn't get enough blood flow to his or her brain, that person loses consciousness.

Losing consciousness may then cause a person to stop breathing.

This can be treated applying CPR. During CPR, chest compressions are used to artificially cause the heart to pump blood.

This is done to manually preserve intact brain function until further measures are taken to restore blood circulation and breathing.

But even if a person's heart starts beating again, it's not uncommon to have experienced serious damage to other organs, such as the kidneys.

Including the brain, which can be irreversibly damaged if no measures are not taken to quickly restore its blood supply.

Five to 10 minutes without a heart beat — and without CPR — is enough to cause damage to vital organs of the body.
