A Presumption Of Death:

Presumption of death Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Justice Committee, 2012-02-22 When a person goes missing their family can suffer serious financial repercussions as well as inevitable pain and distress Having examined the law and processes the Committee have found that such suffering is exacerbated by a legislative patchwork of bewildering complexity the inability to administer the financial situation of their missing relatives a lack of information about the actions they are able to take and ignorance of the correct procedures to be followed by police lawyers banks insurers and others This report puts forward a threefold recommended approach Firstly the introduction of a presumption of death act to clarify the legal position Such an act should be modelled on the legislation in Scotland and Northern Ireland Presumption of death orders however can only solve some of the problems families face It will only be appropriate to declare a missing person dead several years after their disappearance In that time their financial affairs can be devastated beyond hope of recovery The Committee also therefore recommends that legislation be introduced to allow for a system of guardianship orders similar to those in Australia These will allow for the administration of the missing person's property in his or her best interests if they have not returned after three months as well as support for dependents Finally they call on the Government and industry to provide effective guidance for families in very difficult and distressing circumstances as well as those who provide services for them
