Thermal stresses of 10–20 MPa may occur in pipelines in training exercises, e.g. all the joints, valves, pipes and tanks like Paks and come to 100 MPa in real life. It is not a good thing to have a maximum of 100 MPa. It means that the pipe is stressed up to the yield stress. The piping design has to allow for stresses up to the yield stress. The design of the piping has to be such that the stresses are not too high. The design of the piping has to be such that the stresses are not too high.
