An Assessment of Transit

Ridership Jamaal Schoby, Carol A. Lewis, 2008 Suburban development is occurring near urban areas across America. Often these communities are separated by large masses of land with no linkage to the urban core. Referred to as urban sprawl, this type of development causes a challenge for transportation planners in providing adequate public transportation services to suburban communities. This research applied a transit needs index to assess whether there might be demand for public transportation options between selected Houston suburban counties and the urban core. The research found that several neighborhoods within three selected suburban counties received a high rating on the index and are good candidates for public transportation.

Assessment of Nontimber Forest Products in the United States Under Changing Conditions James L. Chamberlain, 2018-08-24 This Non timber Forest Products assessment serves as a baseline science synthesis and provides information for managing non timber forest resources in the United States. This report provides technical input to the 2017 National Climate Assessment and closely follows the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) process. You will find an overview of the findings and interrelated discussions covering aspects of biophysical, social, cultural, economic, and policy dimensions of non timber forest products and the implications of the effects of climatic variabilities and change for them. Appendix information summarizes non timber forest products relative to geographic regions across the country. Modelling Public Transport Passenger Flows in the Era of Intelligent Transport Systems Guido Gentile, Klaus Nökel, 2016-02-03 This book shows how transit assignment models can be used to describe and predict the patterns of network patronage in public transport systems. It provides a fundamental technical tool that can be employed in the process of designing, implementing, and evaluating measures and/or policies to improve the current state of transport systems within given financial, technical, and social constraints. The book offers a unique methodological contribution to the field of transit assignment because moving beyond traditional models, it describes more evolved variants that can reproduce intermodal networks with high and low frequency services, realistic behavioural hypotheses, underpinning route choice, time dependency in frequency-based models, and assumptions about the knowledge that users have of network conditions that are consistent with the present and future level of information that intelligent transport systems (ITS) can provide. The book also considers the practical perspective of practitioners and public transport operators who need to model and manage transit systems for example the role of ITS is explained with regard to their potential in data collection for modelling purposes and validation techniques as well as with regard to the additional data on network patronage and passengers preferences that influences the network management and control strategies implemented In addition it explains how the different aspects of network operations can be incorporated in traditional models and identifies the advantages and disadvantages of doing so Lastly the book provides practical information on state of the art implementations of the different models and the commercial packages that are currently available for transit modelling Showcasing original work done under the aegis of the COST Action TU1004 TransITS the book provides a broad readership ranging from Master and PhD students to researchers and from policy makers to practitioners with a comprehensive tool for understanding transit assignment models

In the Midst of Things Mike Owen Benediktsson, 2025-06-17 How ordinary urban objects influence our behavior exacerbate inequality and encourage social change Assumptions about human behavior lie hidden in plain sight all around us programmed into the design and regulation of the material objects we encounter on a daily basis In the Midst of Things takes an in depth look at the social lives of five objects commonly found in the public spaces of New York City and its suburbs revealing how our interactions with such material things are our primary point of contact with the social political and economic forces that shape city life Drawing on groundbreaking fieldwork and a wealth of original interviews Mike Owen Benediktsson shows how we are in the midst of things whose profound social role often goes overlooked A newly built lawn on the Brooklyn waterfront reflects an increasingly common trade off between the marketplace and the public good A cement wall on a New Jersey highway speaks to the demise of the postwar American dream A metal folding chair on a patch of asphalt in Queens exposes the political obstacles to making the city livable A subway door expresses the simmering conflict between the city and the desires of riders while a newsstand bears witness to our increasingly impoverished streetscapes In the Midst of Things demonstrates how the material realm is one of immediacy control inequality and unpredictability and how these factors frustrate the ability of designers planners and regulators to shape human behavior
