Derrida wrote extensively on the question of the animal In particular he challenged Heidegger's Husserl's and other philosophers work on the subject questioning their phenomenological criteria for distinguishing humans from animals Examining a range of Derrida's writings including his most recent L'animal que donc je suis as well as Aporias Of Spirit Rams and Rogues Leonard Lawlor reconstructs a portrait of Derrida's views on animality and their intimate connection to his thinking on ethics names and singularity sovereignty and the notion of a common world Derrida believed that humans and animals cannot be substantially separated yet neither do they form a continuous species Instead in his staggered analogy Derrida asserts that all living beings are weak and therefore capable of suffering This controversial claim both refuted the notion that humans and animals possess autonomy and contradicted the assumption that they possess the trait of machinery However it does offer the foundation for an argument which Lawlor brilliantly and passionately defines in his book in which humans are able to will this weakness into a kind of unconditional hospitality Humans are not strong enough to keep themselves separate from animals In other words we are too weak to keep animals from entering into our sphere Lawlor's argument is a bold approach to remedying the problem of the worst or the complete extermination of life which is fast becoming a reality agenda of fiction relied on the expansion of sympathy which imaginative substitution was seen to encourage But Victorian criminal law sought to calibrate punishment and culpability as it repudiated archaic models of sacrifice that scapegoated the innocent The tension between these models is registered creatively in the fiction of novelists such as Dickens Gaskell and Eliot at a time when acts of Chartist protest national sacrifices made during the Crimean War and the extension of the franchise combined to call into question what it means for one man to stand for and perhaps even die for another A
