All Are My Children Voices Of Ugandan Women Peacebuilders:

All are My Children Jennifer Ball, 2014 All Are My Children presents the voices of five ordinary community based Ugandan women who are not self defined peacebuilders but whose various life activities contribute to building a culture of peace The women range from a social worker in inner city Kampala who helps orphans to a woman in southwestern Uganda who is trying to preserve her culture to a Karimojong woman who became a political leader in a heavily patriarchal culture As the women describe their efforts to get an education raise children deal with oppressive marriage traditions and survive wars they offer fresh ways of looking at peacebuilding The stories reflect a lived peacebuilding that emerges from the experiences and realities of the women's lives often in response to their struggle for survival both individually and for their families and communities All Are My Children provides insights into grassroots peacebuilding in any setting and also serves to enlarge the definition of peacebuilding It will be a foundational text for those seeking to understand how peacebuilding operates at the most basic level

Peace is Everyone's Business Lowell Ewert, Frederick Bird, 2021-08-01 The premise of this book is very simple While acknowledging that much progress has been made since the end of World War II to improve life conditions for billions of people and reduce the likelihood of war current global challenges threaten to undermine undo or even reverse much of the progress made Growing political and social polarization and the resultant increasing fear of each other is on a trajectory that could cause unprecedented harm The book illustrates how everyone can have an impact on peace and that many already do so in both constructive and negative ways illustrated by many examples The book offers an expansive view of peace which includes promoting human rights identifying and resolving situations of slow violence working to promote fair and sustainable economic development identifying and resolving injustices and establishing institutions and practices for resolving conflicts by communicative means The book especially focuses on the role universities can and should play in promoting peace Universities which have played a pivotal role in creating a more humane and just world through their research teaching and scholarship now face the challenge of thoughtfully examining how each discipline and vocation and the university as a whole can contribute to fostering peace In general universities help to prepare students actively to work for peace by cultivating their capacities at reasoning and reflecting developing their skills in communicating and research and fostering among them an active awareness of their responsibilities as citizens of the world While not every discipline or vocation shares the same level of responsibility to advance peace all have the potential to do so as they intentionally and thoughtfully look for avenues to do so

Women, Development and Peacebuilding in Africa Jennifer Ball, 2018-09-20 This book explores and reflects on peacebuilding which emerges from the experiences and realities of women's lives in East Africa specifically in Uganda The author argues that often these community based peacebuilding efforts are responses to women's struggles for survival both individually and for their families and communities Carefully analyzing education women's roles human rights conflicts disability and immigration this book helps to understand African women's roles in development and peacebuilding in the region The project will interest development studies and African politics scholars graduate students researchers and policy makers

Women's Work Jennifer Moore, 2025-03-11 When women have full socioeconomic citizenship as well as equitable and respectful partnerships with men transformative justice can be sustained in postconflict societies In Women's Work Jennifer Moore presents a reimagined theory of peacebuilding and transformative justice based on the experiences and insights of women farmers and microentrepreneurs who lived through protracted civil conflicts drawing on seven years of interviews with women activists across ten communities five in the Acholi region of Northern Uganda and five in the Moyamba and Koinadugu Districts of Sierra Leone Despite the important differences between the preconflict and conflict histories and demographics of the two countries Moore finds commonalities in the practical yet visionary approaches to community life emerging from the core values daily activities and long range goals shared by rural cooperative members in both regions Collective survival communal healing and conflict resolution define the rhythm of these women's daily lives as they go about building peace piecemeal They reject punitive retribution models and demand instead a peacebuilding model that advocates for advances in material well being the acknowledgment of state accountability for community suffering and reconciliation and restoration of community networks But most important Moore amplifies these women's voices when they insist that legal equality for women and healthy partnerships between women and men are also essential components to enduring transformation of their societies Moore theorizes what peacebuilding look like if it were modeled on these women led matriarchically structured communities that proved not only to be effective at holding governments accountable but also to have the capacity to feed their people and revitalize their local economies Women's Work shows that when women have full socioeconomic citizenship as well as equitable and respectful partnerships with men transformative justice can be sustained through the arts of collective livelihood violence free conflict management and celebration

U.N. Security Council Resolution 1325 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Foreign Affairs. Subcommittee on International Organizations, Human Rights, and Oversight, 2008 Education, Conflict and Development Julia

Paulson, 2011-05-16 Under various names education and conflict education and fragility education and insecurity etc the understanding of linkages between education and violent conflict has emerged as an important and pressing area of inquiry Work and research by practitioners and scholars has clearly pointed to the negative potential of education to contribute to and entrench violent conflict This work has highlighted the struggle for education during and following periods of instability and demonstrated the degree to which communities affected by conflict prioritize educational opportunities It has also offered powerful normative arguments for the importance of quality education for peacebuilding reconciliation postconflict reconstruction and development In many instances however these important insights are derived less from rigorous research and scholarship in the social sciences than from the delivery and evaluation of educational programming in situations affected by conflict This volume therefore seeks to broaden enquiry into education and conflict by exploring through conceptual and empirical work its linkages to broader theories and practices of development and peacebuilding The volume begins with a conceptual and theoretical section followed by a series of international case studies before closing with three chapters focused on the case of Northern Uganda Contributors present a diverse set of studies that together deepen understandings of the ways the education functions in various situations affected by conflict and the ways in which it might best be mobilized to contribute towards peacebuilding and development Educational Film & Video Locator of the

Laura E. Reimer, Katerina Standish, Chuck Thiessen, 2019-11-29 This captivating book presents innovative answers to the question why storytelling Each chapter represents leading edge narrative research designs from Arthur V Mauro Institute for Peace and Justice in central Canada one of the world s leading academic programs for Peace and Conflict Studies PACS and a major contributor to PACS scholarship The authors are candid and offer inspiration for other scholars seeking groundbreaking ideas for their own research design while offering profound expansions to the current PACS literature The scholarship reflects a diversity of ideas passions approaches disciplinary roots and topic areas Each chapter explores different and critical issues in the field of PACS through various forms of storytelling while providing recent original research designs for the future development of the field and the education of its practitioners and academics This volume co edited by three of the early graduates of the program presents and explores a number of these issues across the broad spectrum of Peace and Conflict Studies Contributors to the book are recognized scholars and practitioners in their respective fields The book has a wide audience targeting those particularly interested in tackling and understanding old conflicts in new ways and for those seeking to learn at the growing edges of PACS at the undergraduate graduate and post graduate levels

Resilience, Conflict-Related Sexual Violence and Transitional Justice Janine Natalya Clark,2022-10-18 This interdisciplinary book constitutes the first major and comparative study of resilience focused on victims survivors of conflict related sexual violence CRSV Locating resilience in the relationships and interactions between individuals and their social ecologies including family community non governmental organisations and the natural environment the book develops its own conceptual framework based on the idea of connectivity It applies the framework to its analysis of rich empirical data from Bosnia Herzegovina Colombia and Uganda and it tells a set of stories about resilience through the contextual dynamic and storied connectivities between individuals and their social ecologies Ultimately it utilises the three elements of the framework namely broken and ruptured connectivities supportive and sustaining connectivities and new connectivities to argue the case for developing the field of transitional justice in new social ecological directions and to explore what this might conceptually and practically entail The book will particularly appeal to anyone with an interest in or curiosity about resilience and to scholars researchers and policy makers working on CRSV and or transitional justice The fact that resilience has received surprisingly little attention within existing literature on either CRSV or transitional justice accentuates the significance of this research and the originality of its conceptual and empirical contributions The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4 0 license UN Chronicle ,1996 Religious Leadership Sharon Henderson Callahan,2013-06-20 This title tackles issues relevant to leadership in the realm of religion It explores such themes as the contexts in which religious leaders move leadership in communities of faith leadership as taught in theological education and training religious leadership impacting social change and social justice and more Topics are examined from multiple perspectives traditions and faiths Friends Journal ,2007 The Cultural Dimension of Peace Birgit Bräuchler,2015-08-03 This study outlines the emerging cultural turn in Peace Studies and provides a critical understanding of the cultural dimension of reconciliation Taking an anthropological view on decentralization and peacebuilding in Indonesia it sets new standards for an interdisciplinary research field
