2013 Inauguration After Action Report Summary:

Nationwide Response Issues After an Improvised Nuclear Device Attack Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Sciences Policy, Forum on Medical and Public Health Preparedness for Catastrophic Events, 2013-12-26 Our nation faces the distinct possibility of a catastrophic terrorist attack using an improvised nuclear device (IND) according to international and U.S. intelligence. Detonation of an IND in a major U.S. city would result in tens of thousands to hundreds of thousands of victims and would overwhelm public health emergency response and health care systems not to mention creating unprecedented social and economic challenges. While preparing for an IND may seem futile at first glance, thousands of lives can be saved by informed planning and decision making prior to and following an attack. In 2009 the Institute of Medicine published the proceedings of a workshop assessing the health and medical preparedness for responding to an IND detonation. Since that time multiple federal and other publications have added layers of detail to this conceptual framework resulting in a significant body of literature and guidance. However, there has been only limited planning effort at the local level as much of the federal guidance has not been translated into action for states, cities, and counties. According to an informal survey of community preparedness by the National Association of City and County Health Officials (NACCHO), planning for a radiation incident ranked lowest in priority among other hazards by 2,800 local health departments. The focus of Nationwide Response Issues After an Improvised Nuclear Device Attack: Medical and Public Health Considerations for Neighboring Jurisdictions Workshop Summary is on key response requirements faced by public health and health care systems in response to an IND detonation, especially those planning needs of outlying state and local jurisdictions from the detonation site. The specific meeting objectives were as follows: Understand the differences between types of radiation incidents and implications of an IND attack on outlying communities; Highlight current planning efforts at the federal, state, and local level as well as challenges to the implementation of operational plans; Examine gaps in planning efforts and possible challenges and solutions; Identify considerations for public health reception centers, how public health and health care interface with functions and staffing, and how radiological assessments and triage be handled; Discuss the possibilities and benefits of integration of disaster transport systems; Explore roles of regional health care coalitions in coordination of health care response.

Transportation Planning for Disasters, Emergencies, and Significant Events Deborah Matherly, Neeli Langdon, Paul Brian Wolshon, Pamela Marie Murray-Tuite, Roberta Thomas (Writer on emergency management), Jane Mobley, Kelly Reinhardt, 2014 NCHRP Report 777 A Guide to Regional Transportation Planning for Disasters Emergencies and Significant Events helps transportation stakeholders in the public and private sectors as well as non transportation stakeholders such as emergency managers and first responders better understand transportation s important role in planning for multijurisdictional disasters emergencies and major events The guide sets out foundational planning principles and uses examples case studies tips tools and suggested strategies to illustrate their implementation Foreword The U.S. Labor Movement in the 20th and Early 21st Century Adam Barrington, 2023-06-19 This book provides a critical analysis of the labor movement in the United States in the 20th and early 21st century It explores ideological trends within the labor movement and its conflicts with capital and the state It identifies class collaborationism between the conservative labor bureaucracy and the capitalist class as the primary source of U S labor s precariousness and fragility It argues that the U S labor movement at its most radical and militant stage was an effective force for change against the power structure in the early 20th century At the opposite end it also argues that today s institutionalized labor movement led by the AFL CIO hinders labor s historic struggle against capital and aids in the maintenance of the existing capitalist order The book concludes by assessing the prospects for the future development of militant working class activism and identifies essential components of an emerging radical labor movement that is capable of effectively challenging the capitalist system in the period ahead

The Future of Transatlantic Relations Andrew Dorman, Joyce P. Kaufman, 2010-11-29 Since the end of the Cold War and especially following the US decision to invade Iraq the once strong partnership between the US Canada and the European allies has faced the serious possibility of significant change or even dissolution At the very least fundamental differences have emerged in the ways that many of the partners perceive the issues that are most important to them from perceptions of the threat of terrorism and attitudes to the use of force to expectation about the future nature of the NATO Alliance and in the ways in which those perceptions have become translated into policy decisions In this book experts from both sides of the Atlantic seek to explain why there has been so much divergence in the approach the various countries have taken And it seeks to raise questions about what those divergent paths might mean for the future of transatlantic relations Civil Aeronautics Board Reports United States.
