Unearthing Indian Land Kristin T. Ruppel, 2008-12-15 Unearthing Indian Land offers a comprehensive examination of the consequences of more than a century of questionable public policies In this book Kristin Ruppel considers the complicated issues surrounding American Indian land ownership in the United States Under the General Allotment Act of 1887 also known as the Dawes Act individual Indians were issued title to land allotments while so called surplus Indian lands were opened to non Indian settlement During the forty seven years that the act remained in effect American Indians lost an estimated 90 million acres of land about two thirds of the land they had held in 1887 Worse the loss of control over the land left to them has remained an ongoing and insidious result Unearthing Indian Land traces the complex legacies of allotment including numerous instructive examples of a policy gone wrong Aside from the initial catastrophic land loss the fractionated land ownership that resulted from the act's provisions has disrupted native families and their descendants for more than a century With each new generation the owners of tribal lands grow in number and therefore own ever smaller interests in parcels of land It is not uncommon now to find reservation allotments co owned by hundreds of individuals Coupled with the federal government's troubled trusteeship of Indian assets this means that Indian landowners have very little control over their own lands Illuminated by interviews with Native American landholders this book is essential reading for anyone who is interested in what happened as a result of the federal government's quasi privatization of native lands

Video Mining Azriel Rosenfeld, David Doermann, Daniel DeMenthon, 2013-03-09 Traditionally scientific fields have defined boundaries and scientists work on research problems within those boundaries However from time to time those boundaries get shifted or blurred to evolve new fields For instance the original goal of computer vision was to understand a single image of a scene by identifying objects their structure and spatial arrangements This has been referred to as image understanding Recently computer vision has gradually been making the transition away from understanding single images to analyzing image sequences or video Video understanding deals with understanding of video understanding sequences e g recognition of gestures activities facial expressions etc The main shift in the classic paradigm has been from the recognition of static objects in the scene to motion based recognition of actions and events Video understanding has overlapping research problems with other fields therefore blurring the fixed boundaries Computer graphics image processing and video databases have obvious overlap with computer vision The main goal of computer graphics is to generate and animate realistic looking images and videos Researchers in computer graphics are increasingly employing techniques from computer vision to generate the synthetic imagery A good example of this is image based rendering and modeling techniques in which geometry appearance and lighting is derived from real images using computer vision techniques Here the shift is from synthesis to analysis followed by synthesis Image processing has always overlapped with computer vision because they both inherently work directly with images Automotive News, 2005
